PREFACE.

The Brainerd Genealogy was commenced with the intention of preparing the records in the line of the oldest son of the emigrant ancestor, Daniel Brainerd. Having been favored with records of other lines, the idea of compiling a genealogy of all the descendants was carried into effect. The early estimate for such a work was 6,000 names, which number increased to upwards of 13,000, requiring much time, labor, and expense.

Many of the early correspondents gave such information as they could, while others consigned the circulars or letters to the wastebasket or waited a more convenient opportunity, which rarely ever came to them. If their records are not to be found in the book, the delinquents must bear the blame. The younger members of the families in the fourth generation, a few of the third, began to scatter over the known portion of our country, going first to the northern part of Connecticut, to New Hampshire, to Vermont, to Maine, to Massachusetts, the northeastern part of New York, and a few over the border into Canada. "The forest primeval" and the more remote uncultivated lands induced many, after a few years sojourn in those places, to migrate to other unoccupied lands, thereby enduring great discomfort and continued hardships. With the scarcity of paper and the infrequent correspondence with the members of the parental homes (letters frequently being sent by friends, if sent by mail the postage was twenty-five cents on each letter) and the hardships inseparable from a frontier life, the children learned but little of their ancestors, and when older were more interested in their descendants than in their past history. Records, if kept, were often lost or by the burning of homes were destroyed by fire, thus rendering it difficult to get at all times complete records, and to connect such records with the ancestral line. Ruthless hands have been a great destroyer as well as fire.

It has been impossible to verify all records, though I have aimed to have them accurately transcribed. Records written at different times by the same individual and from members of the same family have been found to vary. Many records often appear to have been written from memory in both church and town as well as private records, which will account for some discrepancies that may occur. Sometimes only an imperfect or partial list of the names of the children of a family are found recorded in the town or church records.

Many marriages were entered in town records thus: James Jones m. Ellen ————. To find who Ellen was, land and probate records must be searched if, perchance, the parent owned real estate, and church records if they were church members, where the name may be found recorded thus: James Jones and wife. When these sources failed, tradition may supply the missing name. Marriages were often by a justice of the peace and no record of them kept, either by church or town.

The following paragraphs will enable the reader to estimate somewhat the amount of work required, as well as time spent in investigations, for compiling this work.

I have examined the land and probate records of Hartford, which gave the first accurate information of Daniel Brainerd; then of Middletown, Haddam, East Haddam, Colchester, Hebron, Marlborough, Wethersfield, Glastonbury, East Hampton, Portland, Killingworth, New Haven, Lyme, Conn., and land records in East Hartford, Branford, Guilford, Clinton, Farmington, Conn., and wills and records in New London, Conn., and Albany, N. Y.

Church records have been consulted in the following places, viz.: In Middletown, Hartford, Haddam, East Haddam, Milington, Gilcad, Colchester, Westchester, Marlborough, East Hampton, Haddam Neck, Middle Haddam, Killingworth, Higganum, Glastonbury, and Bristol, Conn.

Records have been taken from genealogies wherever the name of Brainerd has been found and entered in the Brainerd Genealogy without further proof of their correctness.

My thanks are due to the following individuals for favors kindly granted and for all courtesies rendered while engaged in making researches:

To Elihu Geer's Sons for the use of their large collection of directories from all over the United States, from which were copied post-office addresses of those bearing the name of Brainerd; to the gentlemen of The Hartford Courant office for permission to examine such of the files of The Hartford Courant as were in their possession from the first issue of the paper, Oct. 29, 1764, to the present time; to The Connecticut Historical Society for the privilege of continuing such examination of the remainder of the file of that paper, together with such portions of other files of ancient papers as were found there, viz.: The New London Gazette, The Northern Watchman, The Middlesex Gazette, The Connecticut Mirror, The Hartford Times, The American Mercury, and The Sentinel and Witness.

To all who have in any way contributed to the success of my self-imposed task I wish to express my thanks, for without their aid much less would have been successfully accomplished. Special mention should be made of a few who, in the early stages of my work, gave much and valuable assistance, viz.: The late D. W. Patterson of Newark Valley, N. Y.; the late Henry Martyn Selden of Haddam Neck, Conn., then of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Martin L. Roberts of New Haven, Conn.; Miss A. Maritta Usher of Waterville, N. Y.; the late James Martin Brainerd of Gainesville, Mich.; James Elisha Brainerd of the same place, who finished preparing his records; the late Enos Post Brainerd of Ravenna, Ohio; the late Henry Allen Brainerd of Attica, N. Y., then of San José, Cal.; Homer Worthington Brainerd of Hartford, Conn., and Rollin U. Tyler of Haddam, Conn.

Many thanks are to be extended to the custodians of our public and private libraries, which contain a large collection of historical and genealogical books that have been consulted, for the courteous privileges accorded me in my investigations, viz.: The Congressional Library, Washington, D. C.; the Long Island Genealogical and Historical Society, Brooklyn, N. Y.; the State Library at the State House, Albany, N. Y.; the Joel Munsell's Sons private library, Albany, N. Y.; the Library of the American Antiquarian Society, Worcester, Mass.; the Yale College Library, New Haven, Conn.; the State Library at the State House, Hartford, Conn.; the Connecticut Historical Society, Hartford, Conn.; the New England Genealogical and Historical Society, Boston, Mass.; the Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn., and at Memorial Hall, Hartford, where many of the Congregational Church records are deposited; the library of the late D. W. Patterson, Newark Valley, N. Y., which afterward was purchased by the Connecticut Historical Society, Hartford, Conn.; the private library of the late Edmund Janes Cleveland of Hartford, Conn., the compiler of the Cleveland Genealogy; and the library of The Case, Lockwood & Brainard Company, Hartford, Conn., and to the late Rev. Henry M. Field, editor of The New York Evangelist, for the privilege of looking over the letters and papers pertaining to the Brainerd family in his possession, left by his father, the late Rev. D. D. Field, D.D., before they were deposited in the Connecticut Historical Society of Hartford, Conn.

A GENEALOGIST'S REWARD.

The following paragraph was inserted in the circular printed February, 1904, of which 1,350 copies were mailed to descendants, viz.: "The compiling of this book (Brainerd Genealogy) and the arrangement of the material sent me has required many years of patient labor and research and has necessarily been somewhat expensive. Many members of the family would deem it a privilege to bear a portion of the expense in printing and binding so that the whole of my time for many years past will not have been given wholly without compensation. Those who can and will aid me in bearing the expense of putting the large work through the press, either by subscribing for a number of copies or by contributing to the fund for printing, are earnestly and cordially invited to do so."

Besides my brother's family I have had sixty-six subscriptions. Three gentlemen subscribed for two copies each, one gentleman subscribed for six copies; one lady sent me five dollars, another lady sent me the widow's mite, fourteen two-cent postage stamps, saying in her letter that she knew I "must have been at great expense in preparing the genealogy."

It is more than twenty years since I took hold of the work earnestly, and during that time I have received no pecuniary assistance. I call the working years fourteen (though three or four more could be added to that number of years) at five hundred dollars per year (low wages for a genealogist) would be seven thousand dollars. I have spent in money about one thousand dollars. I call it five hundred dollars. The estimated cost for printing was thirty-five hundred dollars. At the lowest calculation the cost of the genealogy has been eleven thousand dollars. The genealogy was estimated to contain six hundred and fifty pages each volume, two volumes, with an index of nearly three hundred pages to be added (which was not included in the estimate of the size of the genealogy given in the circular), making a total of sixteen hundred and fifty pages, which was offered for twelve dollars. The copies subscribed for would net seven hundred and ninety-two dollars in return for an outlay of eleven thousand dollars in time and money. Hoping for a more favorable response, the genealogy has been divided into seven parts, each part containing the descendants of one of the seven sons of the emigrant ancestor, Daniel Brainerd.

Perhaps those who have not worked at preparing a genealogy infer that the facts marshal themselves in order ready for printing. Such is not the case. The whole genealogy has been twice written by hand, first, to arrange the records as sent; second, to copy and arrange them for reference, which copy by constant use became so worn that the third copying was necessary. The third copy was done on the typewriter by a stenographer hired for the purpose.

In obtaining records I have had often to write six letters to find out where I could obtain a certain record of a family, and then as many more to get the record well filled out. Four bureau drawers packed full of letters testify to the faithfulness with which I have worked. I have sat at my table weeks at a time from eight o'clock in the morning till six o'clock at night working constantly at the genealogy. If there are any doubting Thomases among those who read this statement, let them work for a year in collecting genealogical facts and they will be convinced of its truth and decide they had rather buy a genealogy than to prepare one.

THE INTRODUCTION.

THE ORIGIN OF THE NAME.

In the survey of Domesday, Braintree has two names, Raines and Branchetren, of which one is Saxon, the other British. The meaning is a town upon a hill or a town near a river, which last applies with some propriety to this place, for on the southern side of it is Podd's brook and on its northern, Blackwater. Braintree is probably derived from the two names.—Page 16, History of Essex Co., England.

The name of Brainwood is said to have been derived from Brentwood, a small town in Essex. Brentwood is a corruption of Burntwood, and was derived from the burning long ago of a circumjacent forest.

The late Dr. Bradley of New Haven sought the origin of names in the meaning of words. He was said to be versed in sixteen different languages and had traveled extensively in Europe and Asia, minister plenipotentiary to the court of Siam in Polk's administration, and for a while mandarin in China, when preparing to publish his book on Patrinomatology, searched in England for the origin of the name of Brainard. His search was not as definitely gratified as he wished, but he concluded from what he could ascertain that it was from a Celtic word noble-brained, but added that it should be spelled Brainard and not Brainerd, as the latter meant nothing at all. Therefore, as one branch spells it one way and one the other way, I think it a pity that both should not have the high privilege of being noble-brained men. His pamphlet was never completed, but was probably deposited in the Library of Yale College.

The above paragraph was sent me by a descendant in Joshua's line. She has since died.

The family is said to have come originally from the town of Braine in Flanders, or from the town of that name in France. (Braine, France, 10m. E. Soissons. There are in Flanders two towns called Braine, distinguished by the after name, viz.: Braine le Alen, 10 miles N. E.; Braine le Comte and Braine le Comte in Brainault, 15m. N.-N. E. Mons. 16 S. S. W. Brussels.)

The name Brainard is said to be common in France on the border of Germany, and that the two different ways of spelling the name Brainerd and Brainard are the French and German way.

One of the descendants thought the Brainerds might be of Spanish descent, as the Spanish made a settlement in the south of England in the early history of England.

From a letter received it is said that the first Brainerd in America was a boy who smuggled himself on board a vessel and came to this country about 1650 and was told by the captain of the vessel if he would take the name of Brainard he would make him his heir, which he did. I have found nothing to sustain this statement.

It has also been said by one of the descendants that they originated in France.

Notwithstanding these various statements, I think the name is of English descent.

No extensive research has been made in England for the ancestry of Daniel Brainerd, whose birthplace, by tradition, was in Braintree, England, yet most interesting facts are not lacking, and these are here given in the hope that some future genealogist may be induced to make more extended investigation.

The name is found as early as the middle of the fourteenth century in the form of Brendewoode or Brendewode. The different forms are numerous, but the name may be easily traced from Brendewode through Brendewood, Brandwood, Brainwood, Braynwood to the modern form Brainard or Brainerd.

The following article, written for this work by a somewhat noted genealogist in England, treating of the evolution of the name, is here printed entire. It was mailed to me Sept. 2, 1891.

ON THE NAME BRAINARD.

The contribution which I willingly make to this important work has a precise and definite object in view, to wit, the illustration of the name Brainard. It is well that this be distinctly stated at the outset and, moreover, that with matters genealogical, I have no concern, so that readers may know both what to expect and what they must not look for in the remarks I have to offer. It is true that the evidence to be adduced will chiefly consist of parish registers and wills, but these records will be used solely for my immediate purpose and will not be applied in any way to matters of pedigree.

The family belief is, I understand, that the name which beyond the Atlantic assumed the form of Brainard was in England Brainwood or Branwood, and that the English home of the parents of the emigrant who was himself a mere lad was in Essex. To what extent, if at all, this be correct is the first point which presents itself for investigation, and upon the result which may be reached it will depend whether it be necessary to pursue the inquiry in other directions.

A person's name was that which was given in baptism, to which, in process of time, was added another, which therefore was appropriately styled the surname. The sources from which surnames were derived were various, chief among which were personal characteristics, as Long, Short, Brown, White; office, as Sumner, Reave, Constable, Parson; occupation, as Tailor, Goldsmith, Cooper, Baker; and place of abode, from which John living at Kelvedon was known as John de Kelvedon until de was dropped and Kelvedon became the family name. It will be perceived at a glance that, as respects the name whose history we are investigating, the last of these four sources has the best — I might almost say the only — promise of success, and in point of locality we are directed first to the county of Essex.

There are in Essex two places which at once occur to those who are familiar with that part of England. Braintree suits well as to its earlier half, but its second is by no means adapted to what we require. In substance, tree and wood are indeed not distantly connected, but our concern lies less with substance than with form, and particularly with sound. With these few words we may then dismiss Braintree from consideration.

The other place is Brentwood, which in ancient time was written Brendewode. And here we have to show, if so it be fact, that there was in ancient times a family of de Brendewode or Brendewode, and then that the forms which have already been mentioned originated from it.

The first of these is easy and will not require many words, nor does the second present any feature of difficulty, though it must necessarily be treated of at greater length.

There is on record the Will of a John Brendewod, which is dated on Friday, the vigil of Saints Perpetua and Felicitas (7 March), A.D. 1348. The testator was a citizen of London, and he describes himself as a fripperer, that is to say, a dealer in second-hand clothes and furniture. His Will was proved and enrolled in the Court of Hastings of the City of London in March, 1348-49. A summary of it is given in the Appendix (A) as it stands in the Calendar of Wills of the Court of Hastings, printed by the Corporation of the City of London (Part I, p. 537). In the same highly important series another testator mentions a Stephen de Brendewode (Calendar, Part II, p. 100). This is William Castelyn, whose will, dated February 10, A.D. 1348, was not proved until 1366-67, and who calls himself a "pheliper," which was another word for fripperer. These are not put forward as the earliest instances of the name, nor for any other purpose than to prove that five hundred years ago and upwards Brendewode was a recognized surname.

The mutations and transformations, even, to which English names, both of persons and places, have been subject are legion in number, but in all the object was curtailment. However short a name might be, it was shortened whenever that was possible. Although a triangle might be small, our fathers saw no reason why they should travel round its sides when a walk along its base would bring them more speedily to the same destination. It will not be foreign to the purpose if I observe that, according to English custom, e was and is very frequently sounded as if it were a. For an instance much in point we need go no further than the town which gave its name to the capital of what is now the State of Connecticut when the early settlers, whilst evidently adopting the pronunciation, changed the spelling. Accuracy of orthography, as an abstract consideration; identity with what had been done before; reproduction in writing of the local pronunciation — such were the conflicting claims which presented themselves to the mind of the parish priest in his capacity of custodian of the parochial register. It is probable that the first of these often weighed with men who were scholars, but when there was no standard how could one form be more accurate than any other? Nothing could be more arbitrary than the spelling of surnames, and when persons in a good position and of the best education which the age afforded spelt their names in different ways on the same document, who shall take upon himself to say that such a way was right and such a way was wrong?

In Essex the form most frequently met with is Branwood, and I will give some instances which were brought to light in the investigations I made whilst collecting materials for the present paper. Indeed it will be right to say here that the facts revealed rendered it unnecessary to seek evidence beyond the limits of that county.

In the parish of Little Baddow, near Chelmsford, is a mansion called Branwoods, a name derived, in all probability, from a former possessor. Among the Marriage Allegations in the Bishop of London's Registry, as printed by the Harleian Society, is one dated April 26, 1608, having reference to the marriage of John Branwood of Chelmsford with Ann Newman of Gingrave. In the earlier part of the same century administration to the effects of a Branwood of Fingringhoe was granted by the Consistory Court of the Bishop of London. In the Calendar of Wills proved about the same period in the Court of the Archdeacon of Essex occur the names William Branwood, 1632, and Richard Branwood, 1638. Of the latter, I took an abstract, which is printed below as Appendix (B), where it forms a pendant to the earlier Will, of which a summary is also given.

At Coggeshall the parish register contains entries which lend important aid in the elucidation of the matter, and for copies of them I have to thank an Essex antiquarian. In 1627 is the marriage of Thomas Branwood and Mary Northay, and it is followed in 1628, 1631, and 1634 by baptisms of children of Thomas Branwood and Mary his wife. In 1639, on the occasion of the baptism of a daughter, the same parents appear as Thomas Brayntwood and Mary his wife, thus clearly indicating what, in the opinion of the Vicar or his scribe, was the real origin and true orthography of the name he was called upon to write. In 1646 the form is Thomas and Mary Brainwood, still evidently the same individuals, and in 1653 is the marriage, as Mary Brainwood, of, we may safely assume, the person who in 1628 was baptized as Mary Branwood. The form Brainwood is analogous to what we find with respect to Brentford, a town in the adjoining county of Middlesex, the t having been almost always omitted and the name written Brainerford or Brayneford.

In 1652 Thomas Branwood, with many others, clothiers of Coggeshall, was a petitioner to a Cromwellite body styling itself the Council for Trade.

It is, however, to Writtle we turn for evidence which almost appears to exist for our special benefit and which is so conclusive that it will carry conviction to the minds of all. The parish register, it should be stated, is not extant prior to 1634, but we soon come upon entries which are decisive in their character. We start in 1637 (August 15th) with the marriage of William Braynard and Susanna Graye. Next, in 1640 (April 14th), we have the baptism of Susanna, daughter of William and Susanna Branwood, in a significant entry to which I shall revert presently. Then, in 1645, is the baptism of Jane, the daughter, and in 1646, of Reginald, the son of William Brandewoode, and lastly, at the close of the century, in 1699, that of William (the son) of Reginald and Mary Branard.

The evolution of Branard from Branwood should, perhaps, be explained, and it will only require a word. The letter w when followed by a vowel was usually omitted in speaking and often in writing, whence Branwood became Branood, which is very easily corrupted into Branard. In the Calendars of Essex Wills the name Brathat is found, which is a similar instance, being a manifest corruption of Braithwaite. So general was the custom to which I am now adverting that if a name beginning, for instance, Woo be not found under the letter W, search should not fail to be made under O. Woburn, locally, is always called Ooburn; Wokingham, Okingham, and so forth. Odell, in Bedfordshire, has entirely superseded Woodhill as the name of the village to which belonged an early and honored settler in New England. Brewood in Staffordshire is locally called Brood, and such instances might be multiplied indefinitely.

By a curious coincidence, the day previous to my examination of the registers of Writtle, I was at the house of the incumbent of a parish in another county, who stated that he would shortly be called upon to baptize the child of one of his parishioners, an agricultural laborer, and was in doubt as to how he should spell the surname in the register. He found, he said, so many varieties of the name that he could not take upon himself to determine which was correct, and inquiry in the parish from which he supposed the family to spring had only added to their number. I ventured to suggest that search after an assumed "correct" orthography was somewhat wide of the mark; that the point was to identify the child as the son of certain parents, and that the course was to spell the family name as it appeared in the entry of the father's marriage. This view commended itself to the worthy rector, who expressed the intention of acting upon it.

Now, at Writtle, the writer of the entry of 1640 proceeded upon a plan just the reverse, and he did this not hastily, but advisedly, and upon second thoughts. He first wrote Braynard; he then drew the pen through all but "Bra," and for "ynard" substituted "nwood." A pertinent question is, Would he have done this if they had been two distinct names, and is not the fact of his having done it conclusive proof that they are identical? He could never have intended that the surname of the child should be different from his father's, but what he did mean and thought he had accomplished was to give proper spelling in place of the sound conveyed to the ear by the popular pronunciation.

From what has gone before it will be seen we have proof positive, repeated, contemporary, that Brainwood, Branwood, and the rest are but varieties of one and the same name derived from Brentwood. And what is always matter of satisfaction, the family belief is fully and abundantly confirmed by the strongest tests to which it has been subjected, the evidence derived from the district to which our attention was a priori directed is so complete and so cogent as to render needless any research in other localities. Although it has been said already, and in a last word may be repeated, that in the work respecting the name borne by the emigrant no attempt has been made to trace his family. The evidence points very clearly to the part of the kingdom in which any investigations having that end in view should be instituted.

APPENDIX (A).

John Brandewood, fripperer. To be buried in the church of S. Michael de Cornhull. To Alice his wife all his tenements in the parish of S. Christopher, London, charged with the maintenance of a chantry, for life. To the Prior and Convent of the House of Holy Trinity within Algate the reversion of a certain shop in return for their prayers. Another shop in the said parish of S. Christopher to be sold after the decease of his said wife, and forty shillings of the proceeds to be given to William, son of William Page, and the residue to be devoted to pious uses. Dated London, Friday the vigil of SS. Perpetua and Felicitas (7 March) A.D. 1348. Proved and enrolled in the Court of Hasting of the City of London Monday next before the Feast of the Annunciation of S. Mary the Virgin (25 March) A.D. 1348-9 — Roll 76 (136).

APPENDIX (B).

Richard Branwood of the parish of Rettendon in the County of Essex, husbandman, November 26, 1638.

Though sick of body, yet of sound and perfect memory. To be buried in the Christian burial of the churchyard of Rettendon. To my godechild Richard Spurgeon an ewe sheep and twenty shillings of money. To my servant fifteen shillings. To the widow Netherwood five shillings. To William Hodges ten shillings. All the rest of my ready money, chattels, goods, or household stuff whatsoever, I give and bequeath to my two sons Richard Branwood and John Branwood, my debts, legacies, funeral and Court charges being discharged, my will is that they shall be equally divided betwixt them both, not one to wrong the other. And I make them executors of this my will. And I request Mr. Richard Benton to be my overseer thereof, to see it performed, and if any difference be betwixt them that he will be a means with another honest neighbor to end the same. Richard Branwood, his mark and seal. Witness hereto, William Taylor and William Hodges, writer. Proved December 18, 1638, in the Court of the Archdeacon of Essex. (25 Whitehead).

RICHARD BRANWOOD.

Administration of the goods of Richard Branwood, late of the parish of Fingringhoe, in the county of Essex, deceased, who died intestate, was granted by the Consistory Court of the Bishop of London, 14 December, 1621, to Elizabeth Branwood, widow, the relict of the deceased.

(Consistory Court of London — Vicar General's Book, 1616-23, fo. 238.)

The name now under consideration has been discovered in the parish records of London and of a good number of places on or near the great road leading from London through Essex to Ipswich and Suffolk. Doubtless further search would reveal the name in many other towns or villages. Ongar, Romford, Brentwood, Chelmsford, Colchester, and Braintree, the last named a great center of the cloth-weaving industry in the seventeenth century, have all been homes of persons bearing our family name. This region was the scene of Rev. Thomas Hooker's preaching, and a number of Hartford's first proprietors or settlers can be traced to the same locality. It is then no accident, but a very probable tradition which connects our Daniel Brainerd with this part of Essex. Indeed, we can show that there were Brainerds in Chelmsford and Great Baddow, places especially connected with Hooker; in Braintree, whence came John Talcott, and probably also Joseph Loomis and William Wadsworth; in Bocking, whence probably came William and Ozias Goodwin; in Colchester, whence possibly came Nathaniel Foote, and in Ongar, whence came Richard Lyman. These men followed Hooker to Connecticut, or in some instances preceded him. I give below a list of such wills and administrations as have been found bearing the name, with their dates and the places in the Court records where they may be found; then a list of parishes in which persons bearing our name have lived, with the dates from which parish registers are extant; and finally a transcription of such parish records as have been printed. In the latter case it is not asserted that any of the persons were of near kindred to our New England emigrant, though doubtless if we could but know there may be distant kinship. Perhaps success will reward some future searcher in what seems to be a promising field.

THE ORTHOGRAPHY OF THE NAME.

In the early days of my work some few expressions of loyalty to the supposed early style of spelling the name were aroused. In not more than two instances have I found the name written Brainwood in the early records, which, by a quick pronunciation, seems to have been merged into Brainerd, and was so spelled by the early descendants in Haddam. Some who crossed the river to the east side changed the spelling from "erd" to "ard," which change has been accepted by many scattered throughout the United States, some even averring that "ard" was the correct orthography of the name. As early as 1704 the name has been found spelled "ard." The Vermont branch have spelled the name in the old English style by substituting y for i, as Braynard. As they were not anxious to have the y retained, I have adopted the uniform style of "erd" and "ard." Should some find an a where the spelling should have been e, or an e where it should have been a, I hope it will be overlooked, as it was not intentional.

The name has been found spelled in the following different ways in the Colonial records and in the newspapers. The following list of names shows when each change was made in list of representatives, viz.:

In 1669, Braynard.	In 1710, Brainerd.
" 1693, Braynerd.	" 1711, Braynard.
" 1695, Braynard.	" 1711, Braynerd.
" 1696, Brainard.	" 1711, Brainerd.
" 1697, Brayner.	" 1713, Braynerd.
" 1698, Braynard.	" 1715, Brainerd.
" 1704, Brainer.	" 1715, Braynerd.
" 1705, Brainard.	" 1716, Brainerd.
" 1706, Braynard.	" 1717, Brainerd.

One of the descendants said, in writing of the spelling of the name, that his father had traveled much in foreign lands and was very learned in Philology and insisted the name should be spelled Brainard, and Brainerd it had been spelled in his line since that time. He has, however, at a later date written that the name should be spelled Brainerd, and gives the tradition in his family for adopting "erd" and the spelling, which is as follows: According to our family tradition, the founder of the family was the great Saxon Chief Bran, the Hurd, who conquered the Scottish Border Counties and took and Married by force and Arms the daughter of the chief of the Clan of Gordon, and lived and controlled the four border counties on the Saxon, English, or Celtic side thereof, and was known as Bran the Hurd, because of the great number of Cattle, Horses, Sheep, Goats, etc., which this great Chief owned and controlled. Bran lived in the time of James the Second, and took part in the Saxon conquests of the previously owned English Isles by Rome. These islands were afterwards conquered by the Chevalric Normans and then in turn ruled by six French Kings following the battle of Hastings which placed the Norman Duke of Normandy on the Throne to be afterward overthrown by the House of Plantagenet.

Anyone who is interested in the above will find a clear history of those trying times if he will turn to the first twenty-two pages of the First Volume of the History of England by Macaulay.

COAT OF ARMS.

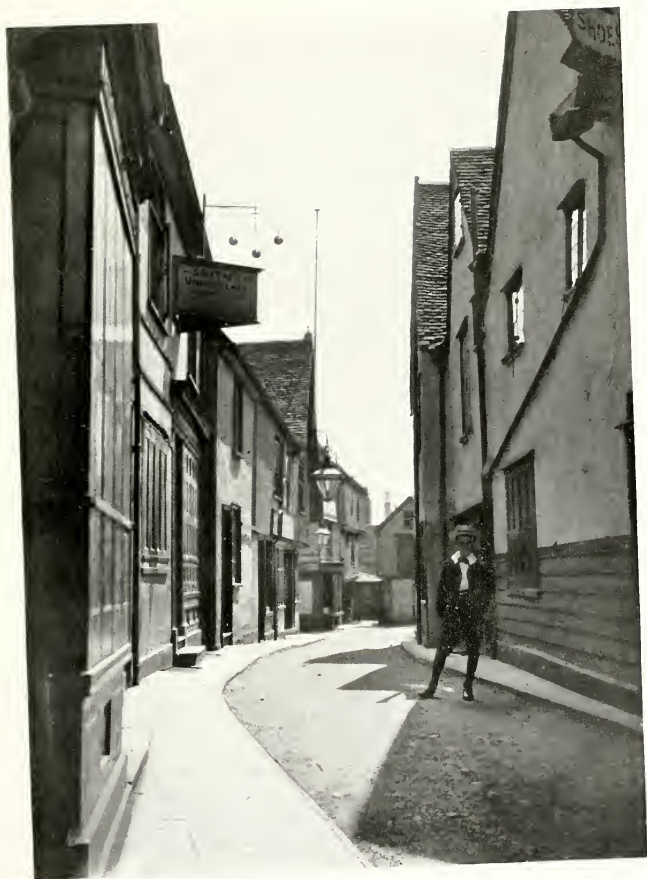

Hinman said Brainwood had one coat of arms, which was probably copied by Rev. D. D. Field in his Brainard Genealogy published in 1857, but I have found nothing to corroborate that fact or to justify anyone in laying claim to such a distinction as belonging to the family name.

Esq. The society very kindly gave me the privilege of copying it, for which privilege and courtesy I here acknowledge my sincere thanks. The manuscript is as follows:

20 Jan. 1786.

A genealogical synopsis of the name Brainerd, beginning at the root, Mr. Daniel Brainerd, who by the best account was stolen from his native town, Brantrie, in the county of Essex on the Island of Great Britain about eight years of age. — Being brought to America, landed up Connecticut at Hartford, was sold for his passage to Mr. Wadsworth, farmer, in said town.

His conditions were —

To be learned to read and write and at the time of his freedom, twenty one years old, two suits of clothes.

At the age of 21 years he labored for him, one, perhaps two years, in Hartford at farming. And in the year 1661 or thereabouts came and purchased a right of land near the Center west in Haddam, 25 miles below Hartford, upon the same river on the west side. Lived first in a cave covered like a small hut or cottage. We presume that he came over in the year 1649. It is said that his name was Brainwood, and that the family owned and employed two spring looms, likewise that his mother at his emigration, was a widow, and by a certain letter sent him by her she married Mr. Grey.

In Haddam he was the first justice of the peace and commanded great respect, a judicious, sagacious and penetrating man, of superior sense but no learning.

Beginning his settlement near the center of the town and near the River he married Hannah Spencer. Then married Dea. Arnold's mother. Then Hannah Saxton formerly Hannah Spencer. (No children by two last marriages.)

Pehham (Pelham.) 22 March 1815.

I Elijah Brainerd make the following remarks relative to Dea Daniel Brainerd Esq. of Haddam in Connecticut my ancestor in N. E.

By the best information he came over from Braintree in Essex County England A D 1649, being then eight years old, to Hartford, where by his gravestone it appears he died A D 1715 at 74 yrs. Born 1641, settled in Haddam, A D. 1665.

Haddam 10 April 1786

This may certify that Elijah Brainerd A B is a legal freeman in the town of Haddam State of Connecticut

From Elijah Brainard b. 1677 — sprung as computed in 1786, 275 souls. By making the first seven sons and one daughter a common ratio thus 275 by 8 makes 2200 by this moderate calculation have at this day 6 Apr. 1786 sprang from the first man Daniel Brainerd who first settled and married in Haddam in the year or nearly 1662.

The remainder of the manuscript was devoted to genealogical records which have been placed in the family records to which they belonged.

ENGLISH INVESTIGATION.

MONTREAL, May 24, 1904.

The most complete summary of the legends concerning the origin of Daniel Brainerd is given in the manuscript* written by Rev. Elijah Brainerd (1757-1828), which is now in the library of the American Antiquarian Society at Worcester, Mass.

* A manuscript very similar, prepared by the same person, has been deposited in the New England Historic and Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass.

Dr. Field, in his "Brainerd Genealogy," said he was raised by the Wyllys family in Hartford, and that the letter from his mother, in which she spelled her name Brainwood, was received after he settled at Haddam. Who could mislay such a document? May we hope that it will yet be found.

In the very quaint and interesting church at Braintree all the parish records previous to 1660 were destroyed during the troubles of the times.

The only item upon the books involving the name and date is in one entry: "Sara, daughter of James Brainard, byried 2 Junne 1664." Beside the loss of church manuscripts, caused by Cromwell's soldiers, the whole of that part of Essex was decimated by the "great plague," and among those who died from that cause at Braintree in 1665 were two "Barnards," one of whom, from the differences in spelling below noted, may possibly have been the father of Daniel.

The family was a prolific one, then as since, and among those proved to have been related the name is given in many different ways, including the following: Brainerd, Brainard, Brainwood, Branwood, Brainewood, Braynard, Braynerd, Branard, Branerd, Brannard, Baynard, Barnerd, Barnard, Barnard, Bernard, and Burnard. It should be remembered that few of the parishioners could spell at all, and that the almost equally ignorant parish clerks entered their names on the records according to the local pronunciation.

Most, if not all, of the above are descended from Ralph Baignard, a favorite lieutenant of William the Norman. By the latter's order he built Baynard's Castle, the Western bastion of the defences of London corresponding to the Tower at the Eastern corner, a small part of the wall of which castle is still standing near Blackfriars Bridge. According to "Doomsday Book" he received some sixty of the captured Saxon fiefs, the greater part being in Essex County. In an article on that book in the Pall Mall Magazine is a photograph of a page showing his property in Westminster, London, and in this, as elsewhere, his name is spelled Bainiard. His arms were: "sable, a fesse between two chevrons, or." One of his descendants, Henry Barnard, member of Parliament during the reigns of Henry IV, V, and VI, generally spelled his name Baynard. Ralph's principal residence was in Raynes, the old name of Braintree. Later the family possessed the Lordship of the County, and their home was in the "Manor of Baynards at Missing, twelve miles from Braintree."

Some of the sturdy American Brainerds may not appreciate having their progenitor come to England with William the Conqueror, but the fact cannot be helped. They may perhaps think it more creditable that Daniel's mother owned and operated "two looms." Possibly these are still in existence, for silk weaving remains a specialty at Braintree, as shown by Queen Alexandra having had her coronation robe manufactured there.

Daniel's immediate parentage has not been identified, and therefore his actual connection with the above family is not proved. By his tombstone he was born about 1641, and there is a long interval between that date and the battle of Hastings in 1066. Of many possibilities perhaps the most promising is in the records of the town of Coggeshall, six miles from Braintree, where, on November 23, 1624, Thomas Branwood married Mary Northey; but their last child, whose birth is mentioned there, is Grace Braynwood, born in 1639. Gray is a common name in Coggeshall, and Daniel's mother may have taken her second husband from the friends of her youth in that village.

Yours truly,

THOS. C. BRAINERD.

JEREMIAH GATES BRAINERD.

The following article is from notes kept by Mary G. Brainerd of New London, Conn., which was written by her grandfather, Jeremiah Gates Brainerd:

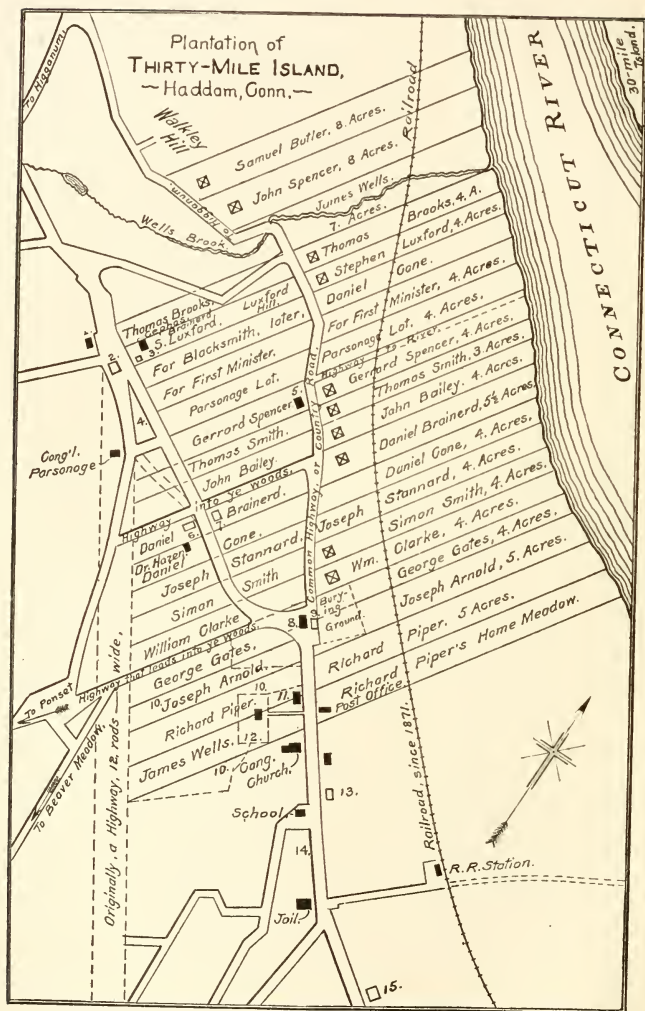

The first Brainard was born in Braintree, Eng., Co. of Essex. It is also said he was decoyed when a boy, brought to Hartford and sold for his passage either into the Wadsworth or Wyllys family. His Christian name was Daniel. It is doubtful whether he could either read or write. Haddam was sold about the time he became of age. He purchased a right and became a settler. His first habitation was under a bank, in Haddam, near the old 'Burying Ground,' a little N. E. of the Court House, it was a kind of Mugs or 'Borough.' In 1807, the remains of it were visible. Daniel was a deacon and settler in Haddam and so called by way of eminence. He was the first and only merchant, in his day, in that town. The store was made of logs. He built a wharf."

From a statistical account of the County of Middlesex by David D. Field:

"The tract of land embraced in the town of Haddam was purchased from the Indians May 20, 1662, for thirty coats which may have been worth one hundred dollars. In the summer of that year it was settled by twenty-eight persons, of which Daniel Brainerd was one, coming from Hartford, Conn. All the early Proprietors of Haddam settled within the limits of Haddam Society, on the rising ground now known as Walkeley Hill, lying between the village of Haddam and Higganum. In Oct., 1668, the settlers were invested with town privileges, and received the name of Haddam, probably from Haddam or Hadham, in England, as the name of the town in its early history was spelled both ways. On Feb. 11, 1686, the assembly gave to the inhabitants a patent of all the lands which had previously been granted them, thereby conferring the grants, with all the appurtenances and privileges, to them and their heirs forever. The settlement was confined to the western side of the river for thirty or forty years. About 1685 and possibly as early as 1670, some of the inhabitants of Haddam, among them the Brainards, moved across to the east side of the river a little south of Haddam and settled East Haddam, probably in that portion of it which is called Creek Row. About 1712 one or two families of Brainers with others went across the river and settled on what is now called Haddam Neck, opposite to Haddam and extending a few miles north of Haddam. About 1732 or '4, some families moved a few miles farther east and formed a settlement which is now called Millington Society, in the town of East Haddam."

Some of the grandchildren a little later moved to the town of Colchester, just over the boundary line dividing East Haddam from Colchester, and settled in the western part of the town in the parish of Westchester. In this line are found many of the descendants of the oldest son of the emigrant Daniel Brainerd. The spirit of enterprise which characterized the early settlers seems not to be waning in their descendants, as they are now found in almost every state of the United States, and in Canada and Australia.

Till within a few years many bearing the name of Brainerd resided within the limits of the town of Haddam, but at the present time a few only with the time-honored name are to be found within its precincts, though many descendants bearing other names are living there.

EXPLANATORY.

The accompanying diagram, compiled in 1906 from descriptive matter in the ancient Haddam records, is intended to represent, approximately, the "Town Plot," or first settlement in that town, soon after 1662, and its location with reference to more recent and present landmarks.

Haddam was incorporated as a town, and given its present name, in October, 1668; previously, it had been known as "The Plantation of Thirty Mile Island."

The highway or "Country Road" through the settlement was probably much wider at first than is now indicated. The lots between it and the river were called "home lots," and the corresponding lots on the opposite side of the road "additional lots." The earliest houses of the settlers seem to have been located along this highway "from the easternmost point of Walkley hill down to the town grave-yard."

The highway leading from the Court House northwesterly to Mr. Cephas Brainerd's place, now the main thoroughfare, does not date back to the settlement; and that portion of it above the "highway into ye woods," was not opened until the Middlesex Turnpike was established, about 1802.

There was another original settlement, known as "The Lower Plantation," located about a mile and a half below the Court House, in what is now "Shailerville."

The lots indicated on the diagram as belonging to Daniel Brainerd are described in the earliest land records at Haddam, as follows:—

"Lands at thirtie mile Ileland Belonging to Daniell Braynard and to his heirs forever:

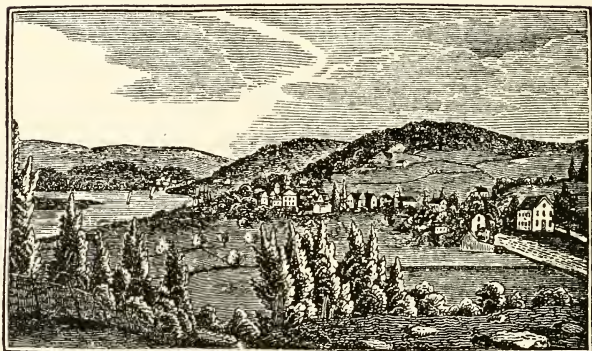

"One parcel of land being a home lott with the houseing and fenceing thereon Containing five acres & an halfe more or lesse, abutting one the great River Norcast one the Comon high way south west one the land of John Bayly northwest, the land of Daniel Cone South east.

"One parcell of land being an addition to the former Containing three acres more or lesse, abutting one the common high way north east one the Common toune land south-west one ye highway that leads to the woods northwest the land of Daniel Cone South East."

The explanatory article on this page and the accompanying diagram was prepared by Rollin U. Tyler of Haddam, Conn.

Barber's Historical Collections of Connecticut, published in the year 1836, p. 515:

This view was taken at a point on a hill upwards of half a mile northwest from the courthouse, a few rods east from the main road. Connecticut River is seen on the left; also the mouth of Salmon River, and the southern extremity of Haddam Neck, on the east side of Connecticut River. East Haddam Landing is faintly seen in the distance, near the mouth of Salmon River. The courthouse appears nearly in the center of the engraving. The large building seen on the right is the Congregational Church. On the hill which rises in the distance, between and beyond the church and courthouse, is seen the situation of part of the granite quarries, about one hundred yards from the river.

BRAINERD-BRAINARD GENEALOGY.

FIRST GENERATION.

DANIEL¹ BRAINERD,* the progenitor of nearly all of those who bear the name of Brainerd in America, was probably born in Braintree, Essex Co., England, near the year 1641, and was brought to this country when about eight years of age and lived with the Wadsworth† family in Hartford, Conn., remaining there until 1662, when with others, he took up land and made Haddam his permanent home, where was then the stillness of the unbroken wilderness and where the foot of white man had scarcely trod. No house, with its cheery household and welcoming hearthstone, with its glowing fire and warm supper, awaited his arrival. There was no store at which he could procure supplies, no sawmill to prepare the lumber for a house, no church where he might worship God in the humility of his soul, no families to whom he might resort in case of sickness for the tender care which is so much appreciated, but with the energy which characterized the early settlers of our country all obstacles were overcome, trees were felled and soon a house was ready for occupancy. A rude hut or house of small dimensions, of one or at most two rooms was probably built, which well accommodated the household and the few articles for housekeeping of which they were possessed. Houses were often built with a cellar under only a part of the house or under one room only, which was reached by a trap door. Stones gathered from the vicinity were used for the underpinning, covered or banked with earth and turf to protect from the winter's cold. These rude preparations were the foundation for other and more permanent improvements, which followed in due time.

Daniel Brainerd's children were baptized in Middletown, about eight miles distant, before permission was granted to the citizens of Haddam by the General Court of Connecticut to build a church and with a settled minister to maintain independent worship, to

* The late D. D. Field, in the Brainerd genealogy printed in 1857, stated that the Brainerd boy lived in the Wyllis family in Hartford. Excepting his statement I have found nothing whatever to support it. Mr. Cephas Brainerd of New York city once said to me that he did not doubt the statement, as Hezekiah Brainerd, who died in Hartford while a member of the Connecticut Legislature, was taken to the house of Hezekiah Wyllis for funeral obsequies. As Hezekiah Wyllis and Hezekiah Brainerd married sisters it was very natural that his body should be taken there. He probably stopped there while attending the legislature. I have once seen it in print that he was in the Wadsworth family, but did not take the title of the book in which it was found. Others have seen it, but are unable to state in what book.

† The manuscript to which reference is made in other places said he lived in the Wadsworth family. The manuscript was deposited in "The Antiquarian Society of Worcester, Mass.," by J. W. Thornton, Esq., June 18, 1862.

baptize the children, to perform the marriage ceremony, and to bury the dead. The journey thither was on horseback, following the Indian trail, which became a bridle path, with the wife seated on a pillion, carrying the child in her arms. The children were baptized as "children of ye church of Christ in Lyn (Lynn, Mass.) received ye Initiatory seal of ye covenant baptism by virtue of Communion of Churches."

Daniel Brainerd of Haddam, Middlesex Co., Conn., m., about 1663 or '64, Hannah Spencer,* b. about 1641 at Lynn, Mass., dau. of Gerrard and Hannah Spencer of Lynn, Mass., formerly of "The New Town," Cambridge, Mass., afterwards, about the year 1663 or '64, one of the first settlers of Haddam, Conn. Mrs. Hannah (Spencer) Brainerd d. before 1691, or about that time. He m. (2), March 30, 1693, Mrs. Elizabeth (Wakeman) Arnold, b. , dau. of Samuel and Elizabeth () Wakeman, formerly of England. Samuel Wakeman d. at the Bahama Islands in 1641. Mrs. Arnold was mother of Deacon Arnold.† Mrs. Elizabeth (Wakeman) (Arnold) Brainerd d. ——. He m. (3), November 29, 1698, Mrs. Hannah (Spencer) Sexton, b. probably April 25, 1653, and dau. of Thomas and Sarah (Bearding) Spencer, and widow of George Sexton,‡ who was son of George Sexton of Windsor, Conn. Dea. Daniel Brainerd d. April 1, 1715, ae. 74 yrs., and is buried in the ancient burying ground in Haddam, a few rods east of the Court House. Mrs. Hannah (Spencer) (Sexton) Brainerd, d.

Daniel Brainerd's home lot in the town plot was No. 51½, and was bounded west on the main street, north by John Bailie, east on the river, and south by Joseph Stannard. The home lots contained about four acres.

East Haddam — Incorporated May, 1734, from Haddam. In Hartford until October sessions, 1741, since then in East Haddam, except that a small part of the town was in Chatham from May

* In the book entitled "Our New England Ancestors and their Descendants" it says that a child older than Hannah Spencer was born in Lynn, Mass., so I inferred that Hannah was born there. The late D. D. Field said she was born in England. Gerrard Spencer, the father of Hannah (Spencer) Brainerd was born in Stotfold, Bedfordshire, England.

† By the manuscript Dea. Arnold's mother m. Daniel Brainwood and Dea. Arnold's father was Joseph Arnold; and the town records state that his widow m. March 30, 1693, but it does not state whom she married.

‡ There were three early Sextons who had wives of the name of Hannah. Mr. H. W. Brainard, in searching for Sexton records, found that Richard Sexton m. June 20, 1706, Hannah, dau. of Peter Buel (Simsbury records). Richard d. March 27, 1714, and his estate was distributed April 4, 1727, at which date the widow Hannah had not married again.

Joseph Sexton, son of Thomas the miller at Boston, b. May 9, 1656, at Boston, d. 1715 in Stonington, Conn. He m. July 15, 1680, Mrs. Hannah Cheesboro, b. May 20, 1643, dau. of Capt. George and Bridget (Thomson) Denison, and widow of Nathaniel Cheesboro, who d. Nov. 22, 1678. Joseph Sexton died the same year that Daniel Brainerd died. Not either of these two Hannahs could have been the third wife of Daniel Brainerd.

Hannah, the widow of George Sexton, Jr., of Hartford, Westfield, and Newtown, L. I., and probably dau. of Sergt. Thomas Spencer, was undoubtedly the third wife of Daniel Brainerd. I have so placed it. Other investigators may be able to find facts I have been unable to discover to prove or disprove the statement.

THE HEADSTONE OF DANIEL¹ BRAINERD, THE EMIGRANT ANCESTOR, AT HADDAM, CONN.

session, 1830, to June 2, 1831. Colchester was taken from East Haddam May 29, 1832.—From Annual Report of Connecticut Historical Society, May, 1897.

Daniel Brainerd* held many public offices of that day. He was repeatedly honored by reappointment to the office of constable, surveyor, fence viewer, town assessor, collector, and justice of the peace, and with others was one appointed to stake out land and to lay out highways. He was elected Commissioner by the General Court in Hartford, Conn., in 1669. For his services as deputy to the General Court see foot note p. 40. He was one of a committee to secure a minister, Jan. 1, 1682, and was elected deacon of the Congregational Church in that place, serving in that capacity through life.

At the present day it is interesting to note how particular the inhabitants, 250 years ago, were in making an inventory of all their household goods and their belongings or estates, therefore, I have printed as an item of exceeding interest to the descendants, the inventory and distribution of the property of Daniel Brainerd, our common ancestor. The will has not been found.

Children by the first marriage:

2. i. DANIEL, b. March 2, 1665-66, in Haddam, Conn.
- ii. HANNAH, b. Nov. 20, 1667, in Haddam, Conn.; m. Oct. 3, 1692, Thomas Gates,* b. Jan. 21, 1664-65, in Haddam, Conn., son of George and Sarah (Olmsted) Gates of the same place. He was chosen proprietors' clerk, and filled the office till his death, his last record being dated March 6, 1734. This office was equivalent to that of town clerk. The records of the east side of the town were kept separately from those on the west side (Haddam). He was chosen justice of the peace in 1704, and held the office till his death. He represented the town in the legislature of his state for twenty-two sessions, from May, 1703, to Oct., 1738, and after the division of the town of East Haddam from Haddam, which was in 1734. He was elected deacon of the Congregational Church in that place in 1704, and retained the office during life. He was called Captain. Dea. Thomas Gates d. April 20, 1734, ae. 69 yrs., in East Haddam, Conn. The inscription on his tombstone is as follows: "Here lieth the body of Thomas Gates, Justice of the Peace." Mrs. Hannah (Brainerd) Gates d. Sept. 7, 1750, in the same place, ae. nearly 83 yrs. The following inscription was found on her gravestone: "Here lies interred the body of Mrs. Hannah Gates, relict of Thomas Gates, Esq., who departed this life Sept. 17, 1750, in the 83d yr. of her age." Her body lies in the Cove burying ground a mile north of East Haddam Landing. Gates ch.: 1. Thomas, b. Oct. 3, 1693, in East Haddam, Conn.; bapt. May 20, 1694, in Middletown, Conn.; m. The Colonial Records of Connecticut (vol. 1689-1706), show that Daniel Brainard was present as a deputy to the General Court at the May session, 1692 (page 66), special session, June, 1692 (page 75), October session, 1692 (page 78), May session, 1693 (page 92), special session, September, 1693 (page 102), October session, 1693 (page 105), special session, February, 1693-4 (page 117), May session, 1695 (page 138), October session, 1695 (page 149), October session, 1696 (page 174), May session, 1697 (page 197), October session, 1697 (page 221), special session, January, 1697-8 (page 235), May session, 1698 (page 244), October session, 1698 (page 265), May session 1701 (page 343), October session, 1701 (page 359), May session, 1702 (page 372), October session, 1702 (page 395), May session, 1703 (page 407), October session, 1703 (page 434), May session, 1704 (page 461), October session, 1704 (page 482), May session, 1705 (page 499), October session, 1705 (page 521), May session, 1706 (page 532).

The same volume also shows that Mr. Daniel Brainard was chosen Justice of the Peace for the county of Hartford at the May session in 1701 (page 347) and again in May, 1704 (page 467) and a third time in May, 1705 (page 499), May session, 1692. "This Court do for the present upon good considerations and until further order free Daniel Braynard from training." (page 71).

May session, 1700. "Some of the inhabitants of Haddam having presented Mr. Daniel Brainard Sr. to be established Capt. of the trainband there, this Court considering the present circumstances of the people there, doe see cause to suspend that matter till their sessions in October next" (page 321).

There is no record of any further action upon this nomination of Daniel Brainard, Senior, as captain, and he was in all probability never confirmed.

As the records do not have the designation senior or junior after the name in any case it is impossible to tell whether Daniel¹ Brainard or his son Daniel² Brainard was the deputy, or Justice of the Peace. Certainly it was Daniel¹, Jr., who was deputy in October, 1715, for Daniel Senior had died in April of that year. It is not an impossible supposition that Daniel, Jr., was a deputy as early as 1692, and that all the later entries on the records refer to him.

A Daniel Brainard was confirmed as captain in 1714 (?) (page 465, of vol. 1706-1716) and this was certainly Daniel² Brainard.

May 21, 1704, dau. of William and Elizabeth () Ventres* of the same place; she joined the church Feb. 5, 1720-21. He was a farmer, locating on the east side of Connecticut River, a mile north of East Haddam Landing, near a spring of water at the southern end of Creek Row, where his descendant, Darius Brainerd, lived and died. The property (1890) was owned by another descendant, William Orrin Brainerd. He was collector May 21, 1688, surveyor the same year and in 1692; constable in 1693. He was elected deacon in the Congregational Church in East Haddam, in 1725, which office he held during life. He was often chosen committee for laying out of lands in East Haddam, and was chosen one of the proprietor's committee Jan. 5, 1782. At a town meeting held in East Haddam Sept. 21, 1724, Capt. Daniel Brainerd† and Lieut. Joshua Brainerd were of the committee chosen to build a church. He was several times chosen representative to the General Court, at its semi-yearly sessions, which were held alternately at Hartford and New Haven, Conn., nearly continuously from May, 1726, to May, 1734. 7. STEPHEN³ BRAINARD* (*Daniel*², *Daniel*¹) of East Haddam, Middlesex Co., Conn.; m., Dec. 24, 1730, Susannah Gates, b. Sept. 21, 1705, in East Haddam, dau. of Joseph and Elizabeth (Hungerford) Gates of the same place. He was a farmer, and settled in the southwest district, in Westchester parish, in the town of Colchester, New London Co., Conn., on an elevation of ground just north of the line dividing the town of East Haddam from Colchester. His removal was then regarded as a removal into the country; all around was a dense forest, and the deer were then so plenty that they could be shot from their door. Tradition says his path from East Haddam to Westchester was marked by the blazing of trees. He cleared the land and made preparation for building a house, and when Saturday night came, sat down on a log and looked toward home and cried because he was so far from home. The following week, on Saturday night, he was to return to his father's home, about five miles distant, near East Haddam Landing. He was accompanied by two† others when he went into the wild and uninhabited country. The house he built was on the site where his grandson, Amaziah Brainard, afterwards built a house, and in which he lived during his lifetime. When an old man and several of his grandsons were going to Hamilton Co., N. Y., he wondered they could go so far from home. His descendants always spoke of him with the greatest respect, and the following incident will show him to be entitled to it: One night, when quite aged, several young men of somewhat convivial habits had assembled by the well which was near the corner of the house where he had his room, and hearing their loud talk as the glass was passed from one to the other, he arose from his bed, and opening the door said, "Gentlemen, I do not allow such talk around my house," then closed the door. Not another loud word was spoken, and the group quietly dispersed, it is hoped with wiser and better thoughts for mending their habits.

They were constituent members of the church in Westchester when it was formed, and probably before had belonged to the church in East Haddam. Mrs. Susannah (Gates)

* Died, Jan. 26, 1784, Caesar, negro servant to Stephen Brainard, ae. 66 years.

† Probably the two who accompanied him were his two future brothers-in-law, John and Jonathan Gates, who settled in Westchester, Conn.

Brainerd d. April 29, 1793, ae. nearly 88 yrs. She was the first person to be buried in the Southwest Cemetery in Westchester. All bodies before that time had been carried to East Haddam for interment, nearly six miles distant, on a bier, and borne on men's shoulders. Mr. Stephen Brainerd d. March 30, 1794, ae. 95 yrs.

Mr. Daniel Brainerd d. Jan. 10, 1777, nearly 56 yrs. of age. His gravestone says: "A man distinguished for his public spirit and exemplary life." His widow married, Nov. 11, 1779, John Porter of Farmington, Conn. Mrs. Prudence (Gridley) (Brainerd) Porter d. June 8, 1811, in her 75th yr., and is buried in the Landing Cemetery at East Haddam, Conn.

He was judge of probate, justice of the peace, and town clerk 1769-77, and member of the semi-annual sessions of the legislature in May and October, 1760, and from May, 1765, to October, 1776, inclusive. He was a farmer. Judge Brainerd was known as the Butternut Lawyer from the ordinary color of his clothing.

From The New London Gazette of Jan. 17, 1777, the following is taken: "At East Haddam, on the 6th instant, Daniel Brainerd Esq. for a number of Years past one of the representatives of the Town, was suddenly struck with an apoplectic Disorder, which deprived him of his Reason, locked up his Senses, and put an end to his life last Friday morning Jan. 10, in the 55th year of his age. Without the help of a liberal Education, in early Life, by uncommon Application to Study, and a diligent Improvement of his Time, together with the Advantages of a Mind, naturally penetrating and Comprehensive, he had attained that Degree of Knowledge, which qualified him for public Business, and enabled him to sustain a variety of Offices with Honor to himself and Benefit to others. He was a man of great Integrity, slow and deliberate in forming his Judgment, he could not be turned aside from the purpose of his Duty, by any of the Arts of Dissimulation, Flattery or Corruption, his Stability of Mind and ardent Love for his Country, have manifested themselves for some Time past in his resolutely firm and unwearied Exertions for the public Good wherever his Influence extended and for raising effectual Opposition to the Power and violence of our Enemies; but the greatest and best Thing that can be said of him, is, that he was as we have Reason to believe a good Christian and a faithful Servant of God, and that he has gone to inherit the Promises. The Society and Town where he lived has lost a great Bond of Union and Support of Authority, the Poor and Injured a Patron and Benefactor, and the church of God an example of Virtue and true Religion. 'Help Lord for the Godly Man ceaseth, and the Faithful fall from among the Children of Men'."

27. DANIEL⁵ BRAINARD (Daniel⁴, Daniel³, Daniel², Daniel¹) of East Haddam, Middlesex Co., Conn.; m., in Richmond, Mass., (Dimmis) Damaris (Fox) Chamberlain, b. May 13, 1757, in East Haddam, Conn., dau. of Daniel and Hannah (Burr) Fox, and widow of John, or Brown Chamberlain.

He served his country in the American Revolution, both on sea and land. He commanded a privateer, which was for a time successful, and it is supposed, from his share in prizes, he acquired considerable property. But at length he was taken by the British and confined on board of a prison ship in New York city, and subjected to indignity and abuse. He lost much property at one time and another and finally his all at New London, when that town was taken and partly burned by the infamous Benedict Arnold.

He lived in Richmond, Mass.; from there he moved to Chenango Co., N. Y., in 1788, and later to Canandaigua, N. Y., when there were only four log cabins in the place. He was poor and somewhat discouraged, but while able to labor sustained his family by farming and surveying lands. From Canandaigua he removed to Lower Sandusky, now Fremont, Ohio, about 1814.

Mrs. Damaris (Fox) (Chamberlain) Brainard d. May 26, 1826, ae. 69 yrs., in Fremont, Ohio. Mr. Daniel Brainard d. Dec. 31, 1837, in his 83d yr., in Fremont, Ohio, and in view of his services in the Revolution, he was buried with military honors.

“ He was at Roxbury at the battle of Bunker Hill, though but a lad of 16 years. He was on a height, where he could see the battle, and near him was a large body of American soldiers; among these was his brother Gideon, who beckoned to him and cautioned him to keep out of the range of the shots from the British ships of war. He was fitted for Yale College by Rev. Elijah Parsons, pastor of the church in East Haddam, and, while a member of that institution, distinguished himself as a scholar, particularly in the languages, being a successful candidate for the Berkeleian prize. He was graduated in 1779 as a B.A. and an M.A., and about that time received a Lieutenant’s commission, with a view of being an officer in one of the companies then proposed to be raised and constituted a part of the American army. For some reason the regiment was not raised, though the officers were commissioned. He held his commission about a year, and during a part of that time was employed principally in attending to the accounts of the Connecticut Line at the War Office, in Philadelphia; some part of the time he spent at West Point. He then resigned, and began the study of law with Gen. Dyer Throop in East Haddam. He settled in New London, and, besides attending to the duties of his profession, was honored with various civil offices. He was a justice of the peace from October, 1800 to 1829, inclusive. He was on the circuit court from 1802 to 1808, inclusive, and practicing attorney from 1780 during his life.

“ For several years he represented New London in the legislature and was once chosen clerk of the House. He was appointed judge of the Supreme Court in 1806 and Mayor of New London in 1805, both of which offices he held till 1829, when he resigned them in consequence of infirm health. His character was held in the highest estimation by his fellow citizens as a public man, and his domestic virtues adorned humanity. As a judge he was highly esteemed by the bench, and greatly respected by the bar. Stern integrity ever marked his conduct in his political and private life. His funeral obsequies were attended by the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the city, civil officers of the town, and a concourse of citizens, who will long venerate his memory." — From The New London Gazette of Jan. 19, 1830.

- iv. JOHN GARDINER CAULKINS, b. Oct. 21, 1796, in New London, Conn. Until his entrance into college his time was spent under the roof of his father, the Hon. Jeremiah G. Brainard. Having finished his preparatory studies under the direction of an elder brother, he entered Yale College in 1811. His social qualities, equally with his gifts of intellect, drew forth the strong regards of his more particular acquaintance in college, and he met them with the smile and the repartee, with the playful jest and mimic fun, which are so easily tolerated in the gayer intercourse of friends, and which, in him never gave offense. The possession of these feelings was not, however, incompatible with a tinge of thoughtful and almost depressing pensiveness which was sometimes observed on his features.

Brainard graduated in 1815, B.A., and, returning to his native place, commenced the study of law in the office of his brother, William F. Brainard, Esq. On the completion of his professional course and admission to the bar he removed to the city of Middletown, with a view to the practice of law. This was in 1819; but in the earlier part of the year 1822 he engaged in the duties of an editor in the city of Hartford, his paper being a weekly, The Connecticut Mirror. His career in the profession he had chosen was therefore short.

With whatever gifts of intellect he was endowed, and however he might have excelled in the profession, had he applied all his powers to it, still it was not the calling he loved, and he had no disposition to make the desired application. Judging by the event he was destined to become eminent in another walk of life. The direction of Brainard's genius appeared in the poetic creations he was meditating during his residence in Middletown. These resulted in several of his smaller printed poems. He also prepared at the same period, several pieces for a literary paper conducted by Cornelius Tuthill, Esq., one of the earlier editors of The Christian Spectator. The paper was published at New Haven, and called The Microscope. The humorous story of Gabriel

John G. Brainard

JOHN GARDINER CAULKINS BRAINERD.

Gap in that publication was from the pen of Brainard, though he left it unfinished.

His literary career as an editor and as a writer of poetry was short, extending only to six years. It was, nevertheless, important to his own fame and to his country's intellectual wealth. He culled every variety of sweet that lay in his path, and looked on nature and man with the eye of a poet, and to subserve a poet's purposes.

Three years sufficed to furnish a small volume of the poetry thus contributed to The Mirror, or that remained by him unprinted. It was published early in the year 1825. It was accompanied by a very brief and unpretending introduction, and left to find its way by its own merits into the hearts and minds of his countrymen. The naïveté with which it was committed to their attention was answered by a generous and general approval of its contents.

Other fugitive pieces followed this volume, which, together with the former, were collected in a volume published in 1832 by Mr. Goodsell, with a sketch of the author's life by Mr. Whittier prefixed. In 1842 another edition of his poems was given the public, published in Hartford by Edward Hopkins, with a memoir of his life and poems inscribed to his memory from the pens of Whittier, Mrs. Sigourney, Snelling, and Dutton.

Early was our poet called to resign life into the hand of the Giver. His health had begun to decline previously to the spring of 1827, at which period he retired from his professional labors, though not with a design to relinquish them finally. He sought repose in his native town; but nothing could arrest the progress of his disease, which proved to be consumption. He lingered till the 26th of February, 1828, when he cheerfully departed to his rest, æt. 31 yrs., 4 mos., 5 dys.

The following is from an address of Rev. D. D. Field at the second centennial anniversary of Middletown, Conn.:

"While in Middletown he was an universal favorite, so sweet was his temper, so correct his taste, and so interesting his conversation. His fame arose especially from afterwards becoming the editor of The Connecticut Mirror at Hartford, and issuing in that periodical short pieces of prose and poetry. His conversion and his profession of religion were both remarkable, and, when he came to die, faith in Christ turned the shadows of death into the light of the morning."

The late William R. Cone, of Hartford, Conn., in his reminiscences of the Hartford Bar, November, 1861, sent the following article under the title "Old Days of Hartford, Conn." to one of the Hartford papers, which is inserted here:

J. G. C. BRAINARD, THE LAWYER POET.

J. G. C. Brainard, John Gardiner Caulkins Brainard, was reckoned among the Hartford lawyers in 1826. I did not know him: but afterwards heard so much of him from my partner, William Hungerford, who knew the whole family well, that I almost think of him as an early acquaintance. He was the son of Jeremiah G. Brainard, a judge of the Superior Court, and the brother of William F. Brainard, a lawyer with a successful practice in New London. Judge Brainard I have seen. He was a man of very diminutive stature. During his time on the bench much more form and ceremony was observed and more dignity given to all court proceedings and deference and respect shown to the judge than in these modern times. The judge was always accompanied from his lodgings to his seat on the bench by the sheriff, who commanded the people in the court room, as they entered, to "make way for the court." The first opening of the superior court I ever witnessed was when Judge Brainard was holding court at New Haven. I heard the sheriff cry, "Make way for the court!" and expected to see some man of large proportions and dignified deportment enter as the embodiment of the court. But when this little, unpretentious man took his seat upon the bench as the court, the absurdity of the thing made it ridiculous. Judge Brainard, however, was an excellent judge and filled this office most creditably. John G. C. was a plain, ordinary-looking man, careless in his dress, and, like his father, small in stature, which was a source of great annoyance to him, and any allusion to his size greatly distressed and disturbed him. He was a universal favorite, and his society peculiarly fascinating in his gayest moments, and in his younger life, with his early friends, there was a sort of drollery about him and ready wit. This was also a marked feature in the character of his brother, Bill Brainard, as he was familiarly called, and with whom John studied his profession, and between whom there was an inseparable attachment which stuck out everywhere. It used to be said that Bill Brainard would, at any time, sooner lose a case than spoil a good joke. As a little sample: There is a maxim of law in Latin, "facit per alium, facit per se." In that day lawyers usually rode on horseback to court. Brainard and the other New London lawyers were on their way to court at Norwich in the winter—facing a cold, northeast storm of sleet and rain—and after enduring for a time the discomforts of the ride, he called to his lawyer friends to tell them it was an occasion when he had rather face it per alium (by another) than to face it per se (by himself).

THE SADNESS OF BRAINARD'S LIFE.

Early in life at times there came upon him from some cause a sadness which to some extent clouded his life. He was never a hard student, but indolent and procrastinating, never doing today what could be put off till tomorrow. He commenced his practice at Middletown, in 1819, but it was by no means congenial to his taste. He was sensitive to a fault, and could not endure the rough and tumble of life. He made no effort to secure business. His office door was always open to everybody except a client. As a lawyer he was a failure, and in this greatly disappointed his father, brother, and friends. In 1822 he came to Hartford, opened an office here, but had no law business. He in fact came to act as the editor of The Connecticut Mirror; but he did not make it a success. Notwithstanding his sensitiveness he loved society, had a host of friends, and not an enemy. His chief if not his only distinction was as a poet. His productions were hasty and unstudied, but had the quality of genuine poetry. "The Fall of Niagara," which has been said by such writers and poets as Whittier to be the most beautiful description of that fall ever written, was composed upon the spur of the moment for The Connecticut Mirror. Brainard had never seen Niagara. The printer's devil came to his office for copy for The Mirror, but he had none, and then while this messenger was waiting for him to furnish some he wrote these wonderfully beautiful and exquisite lines. Whittier, his friend, also wrote frequently without previous reflection and as the inspiration prompted. Standing with a friend of mine, viewing the falls of the Passaic, as the water came on rushing and pouring over the cliff, and looking down the stream over the green meadow and beyond, where the river had regained its smoothness, both became absorbed in the beauty and grandeur of the scene. Whittier was asked for a description, and instantly wrote:

“The cloven rock and the rushing flood
Proclaim the tremendous power of God,
The verdant vale and the calm flowing river
Are the types of His kindness forever and ever.”

These two poets were great friends during their residence in Hartford, and Whittier, after the death of his friend, edited a volume of his poems. His “Machit Moodus,” the “Black Fox of Salmon River,” “The Shad Spirit,” and various other of his poems were suggested by the legends which were then current in the neighborhood when his grandfather lived on the neck of land between the Connecticut and Salmon Rivers. That whole region was full of romance, with which Brainard became very familiar from his frequent visits to his father’s early home. In 1827 his health failed, consumption threatened him, he hoped for relief, and left Hartford never to return.

The following pieces were selected from Brainard’s poems by his niece, Miss Mary G. Brainard of New London, Conn., as good examples of his genius and style:

FORT GRISWOLD, Sept. 6, 1781.

What seek ye here — ye desperate band?
Why on this rough and rocky land,
With sly and muffled oar?
Why in this red and bright array,
Stealing along the fisher’s bay,
Pull ye your boats to shore?

Day broke upon that gentlest Sound,
Sequestered, that the sea has found
In its adventurous roam,
A halcyon surface — pure and deep,
And placid as an Infant’s sleep
Cradled and rock’d at home.

What wakes the sleeper? Harm is near —
That strange rough whisper in his ear,
It is a murderer’s breath;
A thousand bayonets are bright
Beneath the blessed morning’s light,
Moving to blood and death.

Land ye and march — but bid farewell
To this lone Sound, its coming swell
May moan when none can save;
Many shall go and few return,
That rock shall be your only urn,
That sand your only grave.

Across the river’s placid tide,
With steady stroke is seen to glide
A little vent’rous boat:
’Twas like the cloud Elijah saw,
Small as his hand, yet soon to draw
Its quiver’d lightnings out.

'Twas like that cloud, for in it went
 A heart to spend and to be spent
 Till the last drop was shed;
 'Twas like that cloud; it had a hand
 That o'er its lov'd, its native land
 A shadow broad has spread.

Ledyard! thy morning thought was brave,
 To fight, to conquer, and to save,
 Or fearlessly to die;
 Well did'st thou hold that feeling true —
 Did'st well that purpose bold pursue,
 'Till death closed down thine eye.

I dare not tell in these poor rhymes
 That bloody tale of butchering times —
 'Tis too well known to all;
 I write not of the foeman's path,
 I write not of the battle's wrath,
 But of the Hero's fall.

He sleeps where many brave men sleep.
 Near Groton heights; and nibbling sheep
 Their grassy graves have found;
 But some, they are a few, are laid
 Beneath a little swarded glade
 On Fisher's Island Sound.

The Sound is peaceful now, as when
 It saw that arm'd array of men;
 And one old fisher there
 Gave me this tale — 'twas he who told
 The rough, the headlong, and the bold
 How their rash fight should fare.

He too is dead, and most are dead
 Who stood or fell, who fought or fled,
 On that September day.
 Old man! thy bones are gently laid
 Close by yon shatter'd oak tree's shade,
 Beside the fisher's bay.

THE FALL OF NIAGARA.

Labitur et labetur.

The thoughts are strange that crowd into my brain,
 While I look upward to thee. It would seem
 As if God pour'd thee from his "hollow hand,"
 And hung his bow upon thy awful front;
 And spoke in that loud voice, which seem'd to him
 Who dwelt in Patmos for his Saviour's sake.
 "The sound of many waters"; and had bade
 Thy flood to chronicle the ages back,
 And notch His cent'ries in the eternal rocks.

Deep called unto deep. And what are we,
 That hear the question of that voice sublime?
 Oh, what are all the notes that ever rung
 From war's vain trumpet, by thy thundering side!
 Yea, what is all the riot man can make
 In his short life to thy unceasing roar!
 And yet, bold babbler, what art thou to Him,
 Who drown'd a world, and heap'd the waters far
 Above its loftiest mountains? — a light wave,
 That breaks and whispers of its Maker's might.

"QUI TRANSTULIT SUSTINET."*

The warrior may twine round his temples the leaves
 Of the Laurel that Victory throws him;
 The Lover may smile as he joyously weaves
 The Myrtle that beauty bestows him.
 The Poet may gather his ivy, and gaze
 On its evergreen honours enchanted;
 But what are their ivies, their myrtles and bays,
 To the vine that our forefathers planted?

Let France boast the lily — let Britain be vain
 Of her thistles, and shamrocks, and roses;
 Our shrubs and our blossoms sprout out from the main.
 And our bold shore their beauty discloses.
 With a home and a country, a soul and a God,
 What freeman with terrors is haunted?
 Bedecked with the dew drops and washed with the flood
 Is the vine that our forefathers planted.

Then a health to the brave and the worthy that bore
 The vine whose rich clusters o'ershade us;
 They planted its root by the rocks of the shore,
 And call'd down His blessing who made us.
 And a health to the Fair who will raise up a brave
 Generation of Yankees undaunted,
 To nourish, to cherish, to honor and save
 The vine that our forefathers planted.

STANZAS.

On the lake of young life is a fairy boat,
 Like the sweet new moon in a summer sky;
 Through a calm of brightness it seems to float.
 And in light and beauty its course to ply.
 As sudden as a cricket's spring
 Its feathery paddles dip the seas,
 As gaily as the hum-birds wing
 Its sails arrest the scented breeze;
 And pennons bright and streamers gay
 Flutter above the diamond spray,
 As the keel cuts its wimpling way.

A little boy — they call him Love —
 With dimpled cheek and sunny brow.
 And pinions like a nestling dove,
 Sits laughing on the fairy prow.
 And one as rosy bright as he,
 Bearing his torch of purest light,
 With more of joy and less of glee,
 Trims the gay bark and shapes aright
 The course, as they distance to weather and lee
 The send of the sky and the foam of the sea.

Two forms are their lading, two hearts are their care,
 And precious the charge that they joy to convey;
 The young and the happy, the brave and the fair.
 Have sped on their journey, how blithely away!
 But as the moon, which shone but now
 A silver streak of heavenly light,
 With added glory on her brow
 Now nobly walks the queen of night —

* Motto of the arms of Connecticut.

And firmly moves, though clouds arise,
 By storm and tempest fiercely driven,
 Shrouding the blue and starry skies,
 And darkening all the lights of heaven; —
 Thus sped the boat; each wale became
 Of strong and more enduring frame,
 And sternly to the sweeping blast
 Stood out the tall and gallant mast.

That boy has strength and courage high.
 And manhood lights with thought his eye;
 And he, the pilot, sits demure
 In dignity, serene, secure;
 Yes, all have left their brightness now,
 A brighter hope is on each brow;
 No fancied chart, of fairy bays
 And elfin isles, direct their ways —
 A heavenly guide sits kindly there,
 Directing the course of the brave and the fair.
 In yon blessed place be their anchor cast.
 And holy the haven they find at last.

53. AMAZIAH⁵ BRAINARD (William⁴, Stephen³, Daniel², Daniel¹) of Westchester Soc., town of Colchester, New London Co., Conn.; m. (by Jacob Scales, pastor of Second Congregational Church in Colchester), March 29, 1824, Huldah Foote, b. Dec. 4, 1791, dau. of Nathaniel and Abigail (Foote) Foote of Westchester, Conn. His life was spent in his native town, Colchester, Westchester Soc. In his earlier years he taught school for several seasons with success; later he occupied many positions of honor and trust. He was acting justice of the peace from 1828 to 1835, inclusive, and in 1839. He represented his town in the legislature during the sessions of 1829 and 1830 with much credit to himself and satisfaction to his constituents. Being often called upon to settle local differences among his townsmen, he managed them with so much tact that he got the title among his neighbors of being the peace maker. He was a man of large and commanding figure, being six feet and one inch in height and correspondingly heavy. Possessing more than an ordinary degree of intelligence and of strict integrity, he enjoyed the honor and respect of his associates during life and was lamented at death. He was a farmer, having built his house at the time of his marriage on the site where his grandfather built when he settled in the Southwest district, Westchester Society. She was a teacher many seasons, having taught one summer at Cold Spring, Long Island. She was of a quiet and gentle disposition, social and pleasing in her manners, and much respected and beloved by her relatives and friends. If the poor needed a helper or friend, she was ever ready to sympathize with them and to render such aid as time and strength would permit her to do. The following words of King Lemuel in Proverbs, Chapter 31, are applicable to her: "She layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff. She stretcheth out her hands to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy. She openeth her mouth with wisdom: and in her tongue is the law of kindness. She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness." She was blind the eight last years of her life. Mr. Amaziah Brainard d. April 1, 1841, ae. 60 yrs., 9 mos., 19 ds. Mrs. Huldah (Foote) Brainard* d. at Hartford, Conn., Aug. 9, 1881, ae. 89 yrs., 8 mos., 5 ds. She was buried in the cemetery in the Southwest district in Westchester, Conn., by the side of her husband.

* The marking on her headstone is wrong. It makes her one year too young.

Children:

118. i. LEVERETT, b. Feb. 13, 1828, in Westchester, Conn.
- ii. ALBERT, b. June 26, 1832, in Westchester, Conn. In his early life he worked on the farm, which had been in the Brainard family for three previous generations, attending school winters and farming during the summer months. His schooling was finished at the State Normal School at New Britain, Conn. He spent two winters teaching a district school, while not neglecting his farming interests. In 1860 the farm was sold, and he came to Hartford, engaging in the grocery business on Asylum St., where Hills & Co. are (1902), under the firm name of Brainard & Bulkeley, Mr. Frank Bulkeley being the other partner. About 1864 the partnership was dissolved and the business discontinued. He then became part owner in the Hartford Paper Company, whose mills are located in Poquonnock and Rainbow, with an office in the building of The Case, Lockwood & Brainard Company in Hartford, Conn. He was a member of the Veteran Association of the Hartford City Guard. He joined the active company in Sept., 1862, and was on duty with the company when they were guarding the State Arsenal during the Civil War. He was a quiet, industrious, and respected citizen, leaving many friends to mourn his untimely death. Mr. Albert Brainard d. June 16, 1878, lacking ten days of being 46 yrs. of age; unm.

March 25, 1801, in Chester, Va., dau. of James and Nancy (Landon) Fox. He was subjected to great difficulty in obtaining his early education, from the reduced circumstances of his father, but commenced the study of medicine before he was twenty years of age, at St. John, Lower Canada, in the same province, but the war of 1812 compelled him to come to the United States. He then went to Vermont and studied with Prof. John Pomeroy, and graduated at the Medical College in Burlington, Vt., early in 1812. He removed to Canandaigua, N. Y., and entered into partnership with Dr. Wells, which continued for seven years. Six months of that time, in 1812, he was assistant surgeon in the American army (Peter Allen's Regt.) but was obliged to resign on account of sickness. In 1816 he moved farther west, and in 1819, to Lower Sandusky, Fremont, Ohio, where he practiced medicine about 20 years, then, owing to failing health, declined all professional business.

He was once elected sheriff and once mayor of Fremont, Ohio. He delivered a masonic temperance address before the lodge in Fremont, Ohio, in May, 1853.

Amasa and Grace (Hallam) Learned. Mrs. Anna (Learned) Brainard d. Aug. 16, 1817, ae. 33 yrs. He m. (2), March 18, 1832 (by Rev. Mr. A. McEwen), Sarah Ann Prentiss, b. Aug. 21, 1801, dau. of John and Eunice (Frink) Prentiss.

He was fitted for college by Jacob B. Gurley, entered Yale in 1798, and through his college course was one of the best scholars in his class. He graduated at Yale in 1802, M.A., and was made Bachelor of Arts by his Alma Mater the same year. He studied law with his father and practiced his profession in New London till his death; was an able advocate, generally interesting, often very humorous, and not unfrequently brilliant. He was also a fine writer. Two addresses of his, one delivered before a masonic lodge, and the other at the laying of the cornerstone of the Groton monument, have been published and excited much attention. The former passed through three editions. The latter is evincive of much genius and of great care and felicity of composition. When the distinguished Roger Griswold became Governor of Connecticut he was appointed aid-de-camp and Capt.-Gen. and Commander, which gave him the rank of Colonel. He was justice of the peace for New London Co. for 14 yrs.; notary public from 1811 to 1844, inclusive; clerk of the City Court from 1811 to 1828, inclusive; representative to the General Assembly in 1840; quartermaster of the 3d Brigade in 1810; attorney for the Whaling Bank of New London.

He was the subject of some religious exercises in the revival at college in 1802, and though nothing saving was then experienced, a conviction was made upon his mind that experimental religion was indispensable to salvation, that never left him. He was a constant attendant upon public worship, a careful and critical hearer of the Word, and for quite a number of years before his death he maintained worship in his house from a conviction that it was a duty he owed his family, and there is good evidence that he yielded to the conditions of mercy. In Jan., 1843, he was admitted to membership in the First Congregational Church, and his friends and acquaintances rejoiced in the belief that when he died he was received into the joy of his Lord.

The following sweet poems are from the pen of Mary Gardiner Brainard:

SONG OF THE ROBIN.

Never so chilly and blowy be March,
 Robin knows it's Spring;
 Tell him, if you can, when it's time to sing;
 He comes with his calendar under his wing.
 He will be ahead of the buds and leaves;
 He cannot wait for the mildest days;
 His eager spirit its note must raise.
 Hear him in morning's duskiuess,
 Loving the stillness, the sombre gray,
 Plaintively caroling forth his lay,
 Till a grand chorus comes in to say:
 "We are so glad, we are wild with joy;
 God is so good that he must be praised:
 We cannot help it—we cannot wait;
 Spring may be chilly, but Summer is late,
 Praise Him, high in the tall tree-top,
 While people are sleeping and know it not."
 Some sleepless, sad one listens and says:
 "Oh, that those wild, mad birds would stop."

Over and over, the glad, loud song,
 Just touched with the sadness that clings to earth:
 Ye are not sinners—why should ye care?
 Sing as pure spirits sing; sing and share
 None of the sadness, but only the mirth.

Robin seeks not for listeners—no;
 This is his full heart's overflow
 Unto the trees, and the clouds, and the dew,—
 Into the ear of the waking morn,—
 Piercing the earliest twilight through
 With the burst of his gushing song.
 He sings, for he must sing; he cannot wait;
 Dawn is half darkness, but sunrise is late.
 Oh, the joy of that shadowed hour!
 Bubbling over with hymns of praise;
 Never could daylight such music pour;
 Never could midday such chorus raise.
 Yet is there plaint in the melody,
 A thread of grief in the nest of song;
 The Spring brings many glad things,
 But many things are gone!

Here and there, when the sunlight comes,
 Robin in singleness warbles his hymn;
 Pours out his love and his gladness of heart:
 Oh, his own song has no sadness for him.

Diving deep into April showers,
 Sweeter his note when the rain-drops fall:
 "I have so much to utter," he says,
 "My heart is so full that I cannot tell all."

Spring yields to Summer, still Robin sings on;
 June lends her ear to his mystical note,
 Sometimes he tells a July afternoon
 Part of the joy that bounds into his throat:
 Farewell outgoings, sweet thoughts left till last,
 Tender good-byes, for the time glideth fast.
 "Summer is lovely, make much of it, drink
 Deeply its cup of joy,—soon 'twill have past;
 Hold fast the Spirit of Beauty so fleet,
 Listen her harmony—sit at her feet."

Mute grow your voices, yet linger your forms;
 True friends to Summer, ye stay while ye may;
 Then without utterance, folded your songs,
 Silently, stealthily glide ye away.
 When will ye come again? winter is long;
 Many the days before April and June:
 Never again will ye sing the same song:
 Never your tune will be just the old tune.

OWNERSHIP.

That which we look on with unselfish love
 And true humility, is surely ours;
 Even as a lake looks at the stars above,
 And makes within itself a heaven of stars.
 The lowliest flower the prairie land presents
 Raising its sweet face to the far off sun,
 Has the whole earth for its inheritance,
 And calls the sunlight and the air its own.
 The clouds and dews and drops of falling rain.
 As ministering spirits to it come;
 Its little life has all it can contain,
 As though Creation were for it alone:
 So to the meek, the wide, wide earth is given,
 Yea, and the Maker too of earth and Heaven.

NOT KNOWING.

"Not knowing the things that shall befall me there."—Acts XX; 22.

I know not what shall befall me;
 God hangs a mist o'er my eyes.
 And thus, each step of my onward path,
 He makes new scenes to rise,
 And every joy he sends me comes
 As a sweet and glad surprise.

I see not a step before me,
 As I tread on another year:
 But the past is in God's keeping,
 The future His mercy shall clear,
 And what looks dark in the distance,
 May brighten as I draw near.

For perhaps the dreaded future
 Is less bitter than I think:
 The Lord may sweeten the waters
 Before I stoop to drink,
 Or, if Marah must be Marah,
 He will stand beside its brink.

It may be He keeps waiting
 Till the coming of my feet,
 Some gift of such rare blessedness,
 Some joy so strangely sweet,
 That my lips shall only tremble
 With the thanks they cannot speak.

O restful, blissful ignorance!
 'Tis blessed not to know,
 It keeps me still in the mighty arms
 Which will not let me go,
 And hushes my soul to rest
 On the bosom which loves me so!

So I go on not knowing;
 I would not if I might;
 I would rather walk in the dark with God,
 Than go alone in the light; —
 I would rather walk with Him by faith,
 Than walk alone by sight.

My heart shrinks back from trials
 Which the future may disclose,
 Yet I never had a sorrow
 But what the dear Lord chose:
 So I send the coming tears back,
 With the whispered word, "He knows."

THE LITTLE FACE OF THE LONG AGO.

O little face of the Long Ago, come back to me once more
 to-night,
 As I sit and dream by the fire's soft light,
 While the winds roar and rage without,
 And the snow is swirling in drifts about.
 I shut my eyes till I feel the thrill
 Of a "vanished hand" and "a voice that is still."
 The fire on my hearth burns high, burns low,
 And I see by the light of its fitful glow
 A little face of the Long Ago.

A hand into mine confidently slips
 As was its wont in the days gone by,
 And a smile is touching the parted lips
 And lighting the beaming eye.
 Silently, side by side we sit,
 And hark to the wind and the clock's low tick
 As it softly tells of the flight of time
 And chimes the hour with a gentle chime,
 Swinging its pendulum to and fro
 While I am watching the happy glow
 On the little face of the Long Ago.

We need no words in this quiet hour,
 The voice of Silence is louder far

As we sit and dream by the hearthstone's light,
 You and I on this stormy night.
 Once more, under shadow of spreading trees
 We feel the breath of the summer breeze;
 We think our thoughts in some little nook,
 Or ramble through woods and beside the brook;
 And ever I'm turning to see if 'tis so —
 If you are going the way I go
 O little face of the Long Ago!

O little face where the April sky
 Of shadow and sunshine go flitting by,
 How the cloud is sent to its hiding place
 That light may shine on another's face,
 (O sky of hope, sure thou hast not for me Worn thy sweet sunset hues — it cannot be!)
 So steadfast in purpose so brave in woe
 Is the little face of the Long Ago.

The wind is softening its rage without,
 The fire on my hearth is almost out;
 I cover the embers with ashes o'er
 And sit me down in the gloom once more.
 I gaze on the ashen pile which lies
 Where the recent glow met my dreaming eyes;
 Ah me! it is hidden beneath the snow —
 That little face of the Long Ago!

77. JOSEPH BATES⁶ BRAINERD (*Noadiah*⁵, *Jared*⁴, *Noadiah*³, *Daniel*², *Daniel*¹) of Haddam, Middlesex Co., Conn.; m., May 5, 1833, in Meriden, Conn. Sarah Ann Dimmick, b. ———, probably in New London, Conn., dau. of Lot and Hannah (Searles) Dimmick of Meriden, Conn. After his marriage he moved from Meriden to Bristol, thence to Ansonia, Conn., where he died. He was a man of more than ordinary mental capacity, of sterling integrity, and was universally respected while he lived and lamented when he died. He was a cabinet maker. Mr. Joseph Bates Brainerd d. May 8, 1876, ac. 76 yrs., 6 mos., 22 ds. Mrs. Sarah Ann (Dimmick) Brainerd d. March 30, 1879, ac. 69 yrs.

Child by adoption: 1. MARIA SCOVILLE, b. Aug. 15, 1829, in Watertown, Conn. Her baptismal name was Maria Scoville Merriam, dau. of Edward Scoville Merriam, who d. in Waterbury, Conn., and his wife, Julia (Beecher) Merriam of Woodbridge, Conn.

"She went to Waterbury, Conn., about 1849, and sang in St. John's choir under the direction of L. T. Downs and T. L. Driggs. G. H. Curtiss, an accomplished musician of that period, hearing her sing, advised her to go to New York to study. She began work about 1853, with Dr. C. W. Beams, then organist of the church of the Ascension. She sang for several years in this church, and nine years in St. Bartholomew's, and during this period was constantly in demand for concert and oratorios, and unquestionably ranked as the leading American soprano. After singing for some eight or nine years at Yonkers, N. Y., and for a time at the Broadway Tabernacle, New York city, and filling other church engagements, she became engaged in teaching vocal music under the auspices of the Presbyterian Board of Missions at Oakland Institute, in Asheville, N. C. She was without doubt the greatest artist whose career has originated in Waterbury, and her singing in oratorio, especially in Handel's 'Messiah,' has been praised in the warmest terms by leading critics."—From History of Waterbury.

In a New York paper of Sept. 11, 1892, in a lengthy obituary notice of the late Mr. Timm, a noted musician in New York city, the following anecdote was given by him in his own words: "It was at the beginning of our Civil War. The news of the firing upon Fort Sumter had arrived the day before our last concert that season. We had many thousand copies of the words of 'The Star-Spangled Banner' distributed at the entrance of the Academy of Music on the evening of the concert, with the request of the audience to join in the chorus. The audience was very large on that occasion. After the performance of the last piece on the programme the largest flag we could procure was let down from the flies of the stage, forming a background to the orchestra. I then led Miss Brainerd, who wore a scarf of the national colors, to the footlights. After a long and tremendous applause she began to sing with her fine voice the best of all our patriotic songs, 'The Star-Spangled Banner.' I shall never forget the almost wild enthusiasm of the whole audience when the chorus broke in: the waving of handkerchiefs and hats, the tremendous noise of the stamping of feet and canes."

78. MARY ANNE⁶ BRAINERD (*Noadiah*⁵, *Jared*⁴, *Noadiah*³, *Daniel*², *Daniel*¹) of Haddam, Middlesex Co., Conn.; m., Nov. 24, 1836 (by Samuel Mills, pastor of the Congregational Church), Rev. Mark Ives, b. Feb. 10, 1809, son of Cephas and Nancy (Clark) Ives of Goshen, Conn. He attended Goshen Academy; graduated at Union College in 1833; at Andover Theo. Sem. in 1833-34; at Hartford Theo. Sem. (then East Windsor) in 1836; ordained at Sharon, Conn., Sept. 28, 1836. They sailed from Boston Dec. 14, 1836, as missionaries of the A. B. C. F. M. to the Sandwich Islands, where he remained till 1851, a space of 14 years, 6 mos.; his wife remaining three years longer. They were stationed at Hana on the eastern extremity of Maui from 1837 to 1840, a place much exposed to the trade winds, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Conde, where no missionary had ever been. They were the first white ladies the natives had ever seen. As missionaries they were welcomed with an enthusiasm that was very cheering. "They would come twenty miles and wake us up in the night to talk with us, and asked all manner of strange questions. Mrs. Ives went into school six hours every day and the scholars in a few months learned to read fluently in the Bible. We commenced life in a house made by planting posts in the ground and sticks tied across them and the whole covered with grass, which resembled a hay stack with a hole for a door, and three or four smaller holes for windows." Mr. Ives had a school about two miles distant, of a hundred scholars, and preached at distant villages. On March 21, 1838, during his absence, their house took fire and burned to the ground. This left them so much exposed to the elements Mrs. Ives took a severe cold and was threatened with consumption, and on that account they were removed to Kealakekua, on the eastern side of the island of Hawaii, where Capt. Cook was killed. His field extended 40 miles along the sea coast. Mr. Forbes occupied the station while Mr. Ives took an outpost 12 miles distant, and took the care of all the schools, which at the time he left had increased to a thousand scholars.

He gathered a church of about two thousand, but his labors were too arduous. When he had been there nine years, one Sabbath, having taken forty that day into the church, in the midst of his sermon, he suddenly sank down in his pulpit, and was not able to preach again. With the advice of the physicians, and being commended by the mission to the secretary in Boston, he left the Sandwich Islands, Dec. 9, 1850. His health not being restored as was expected, at the decision of the Board, his family left there Dec. 1, 1843, to join him in America. They lived in Cornwall, Conn., and he became a farmer. He moved to Danbury, Conn., Oct., 1883. Those who enjoyed the privilege of personal acquaintance with Mr. and Mrs. Ives can testify to their rich Christian experience, the true missionary spirit not being exhausted by their residence in heathen lands, but developed and enlarged. Mrs. Mary Anne (Brainerd) Ives d. March 2, 1882, at Cornwall, Conn., æ. 71 yrs., 3 mos., 14 ds. Rev. Mark Ives d. March 21, 1885, æ. 76 yrs., 1 mo., 11 ds., in Danbury, Conn. - ✓118. LEVERETT BRAINARD (Amaziah⁵, William⁴, Stephen³, Daniel², Daniel¹) of Hartford, Hartford Co., Conn.; m. (by Rev. J. L. Jenkins, pastor of Pearl Street Congregational Church), Nov. 29, 1865, Mary Jerusha Bulkeley,* b. Sept. 27, 1843, in East Haddam, Conn., dau. of Judge Eliphalet Adams and Lydia Smith (Morgan) Bulkeley of Hartford, Conn. His father died when he was thirteen years of age, which left him, the oldest son, in charge of the farm, to which he devoted his time summers, attending the district school in the winter, later attending school at Bacon Academy in Colchester. After teaching school a couple of winters, he returned to the farm. He soon after became a book agent, and later made an engagement in the insurance business, which took him to western Pennsylvania and vicinity; after spending a couple of years there, he returned to the farm. In 1853 he was tendered the secretaryship of the Orient Insurance Company of Hartford, which he accepted and held for five years. "He had been prominent in the business life of the city for nearly a half century and always had the city's interest at heart."

* She is ninth in descent from William Brewster.

He was a member of the Court of Common Council in 1866, of the Board of Park Commissioners from 1872 to 1877, a director of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, the Ætna National Bank, the United States Bank, the Security Company, the Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection and Insurance Company, the Hartford and New York Transportation Company, the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company, the Ætna Life Insurance Company, the Western Automatic Machine Screw Company, the Hartford Faience Company, the Ætna Indemnity Company, the Board of Trade, and the Charity Organization, and a trustee of the Scottish Union and National Insurance Company. He was first vice-president of the Connecticut Typothetæ, and had been its president. He was president of the Hartford Paper Company, of the Burr Index Company, the Employing Printers Association of Connecticut and vicinity. January, 1858, he was admitted as a partner in the firm of The Case, Lockwood & Brainard Company. He was made secretary and treasurer of the company, and was chosen president after the death of the senior member of the firm, Mr. Newton Case.

He represented the second ward in the court of common council, and he was an active member of the Governor's Foot Guard. He was a representative to the Connecticut State Legislature in 1884, and was chosen chairman of the committee on railroads, one of the most important committees in the House. In 1894 he was chosen Mayor of the city of Hartford, being elected by a large majority. He served a term of two years. He was many years chairman of the society committee of the Pearl Street Congregational Church, till the removal of the church to Farmington avenue.

He was appointed by Governor M. G. Bulkeley, in 1890, with ex-Governor Thomas M. Waller, a commissioner from Connecticut to the World's Fair at Chicago. He was made chairman of the joint board's committee on manufactures, one of the most important of the working committees of the Commission. He was also a member of the state committee from Connecticut on international exhibits at the Chicago Fair.

In social life, he was a member of Hartford Lodge, No. 88, A. F. and A. M., the Hartford Club, the Republican Club of Hartford, the Country Club of Farmington, the Hartford Golf Club, and the Hartford Yacht Club. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, being grandson of William Brainard, Captain Twenty-fifth Connecticut Militia.

CHARLES EDWIN BRAINARD

The following article appeared in the editorial column of The Hartford Courant on July 3.

"Leverett Brainard was a part of Hartford. Everybody knew him and he had a kind word for whomever he knew. He was identified with many of the corporations here whose success has added so much to the standing of the city in business circles, and he has been an important factor in their growth and prosperity. He was conservative but far-seeing, and he typified the careful, fair-minded and public-spirited citizen. The responsibilities that his fellow men imposed upon him testified most emphatically their confidence in him. He was respected and trusted as a representative citizen, and as a friend he was held in peculiarly affectionate consideration. His nature was gentle, all his instincts were kindly; he wished everybody well, and the fact was made unobtrusively evident to all who came to know him. He was a keen observer of men and things, and possessed a clever wit and a neat manner of putting his notions that made him always a most agreeable companion. Many kind things are being said of him these days, and they reflect the sentiments he himself entertained toward his fellow citizens. He had a kind heart."

Mr. Leverett Brainard died July 2, 1902, ae. 74 yrs., 4 mos., 19 ds., in Hartford, Conn.

The usual commendatory resolutions were passed by the various organizations and societies to which he belonged, at their business meetings following his death.

Mrs. Brainard is a kind, self-sacrificing, and devoted mother, ever manifesting her zeal and interest in the welfare of her family and with her philanthropic spirit aiding those who are in need with kind words of sympathy. She has been greatly interested in charity work, having been director and president of the Union for Home Work, and was (1904) president of the Orphan Asylum in Hartford, which is under the auspices of the various Protestant Christian people. Mrs. Mary Jerusha (Bulkeley) Brainard d.

Children :

225. i. MARY LYDIA, b. Nov. 14, 1867, in Hartford, Conn.
- ii. CHARLES EDWIN, b. Dec. 10, 1869, in Hartford, Conn.; d. Oct. 31, 1889, ae. 19 yrs., 10 mos., 21 ds. He received his preparatory education and training in the public schools, having graduated with honor at the Hartford Public High School in 1887. He immediately entered Yale University, and was a popular and greatly respected member of the junior class. This in brief is the story of his short life, the bright promise of which has been so sadly and suddenly ended.

He was a general favorite in the social circle in which he moved. Manly, self-respecting, warm-hearted, intelligent, he was the pride of his family and beloved by all who knew him. Of his death, his pastor, the Rev. W. DeLoss Love, writes to The Courant:

"The young people who knew him will receive his death with deepest sorrow. They were all his friends, none knew him that did not feel the strength of his young manhood. His ways were quiet and gentlemanly, his words bore the knightly impress of a noble nature. He deserved to be popular, as he was, for his character was worthy of imitation among his classmates and acquaintances. Before he entered Yale College he united with the Pearl St. Church, and his manly decision and bearing then won him the esteem of his seniors. His life has been eminently consistent, as his college friends testify. His home life was gentle and generous—a brother beloved, a son in whom a parent might rejoice.” From The Hartford Courant.

The bearers were twelve classmates of Yale. The junior class, of which he was a member, passed the following resolutions:

“Whereas God in his wisdom and mercy has taken from amongst us Charles E. Brainard, our classmate and fellow student, and whereas in the three years of our college life we have learned to love and admire in him the attributes of true manhood, be it “Resolved, that our class in sorrow at his loss wear a badge of mourning for thirty days. That two representatives be chosen to attend his funeral, and that these resolutions be sent to his family in sympathy and for his memory’s sake.

“S. W. CHILDS,

“J. E. FARMER,

“GROSVENOR ATTERBURY,

“Committee.”

“The bereaved family have the heartfelt sympathy of this community and their wide circle of friends.

“Sleep sweetly, tender heart, in peace!

Sleep, holy spirit, blessed soul;

While the stars burn, the moons increase

And the great ages onward roll.”

226. iii. LUCY MORGAN, b. Jan. 22, 1872, in Hartford, Conn.

iv. ROBERT LEVERETT, b. March 31, 1874, in Hartford, Conn.; d. Aug. 3, 1885, ae. 11 yrs., 4 mos., 24 ds., at Fenwick, Conn. He was a lad of good capabilities, of a sweet disposition, retiring in his manner and with a mind thoughtful and mature beyond his years, a retentive memory, and a reserve fund of dry humor which gave great promise of future usefulness. He had an inquisitive turn of mind, possessing those traits of character that would have rendered his life one to be desired. His memory lingered long in the hearts of the beloved home circle of which he was a member.

v. ALBERT BULKELEY, b. July 9, 1876, in Hartford, Conn.; d. Nov. 2, 1881, ae. 5 yrs.; 3 mos., 24 ds., a bright, lively, and social boy, pleasing in speech, always merry, of a joyous and affectionate disposition, and ready for a good time. The bright hopes anticipated for him were nipped in the bud, when the fell destroyer, death, claimed him for his own. Sorrowing parents and friends gave the final look to the loved one and he was laid away, but his memory lives with them.

- x. HELEN STERLING, b. May 6, 1889, in Hartford, Conn.; d. Nov. 11, 1899, ae. 10 yrs., 6 mos., 5 ds. Her short life, so suddenly brought to a close, has saddened the hearts of all her family and friends. She was a sweet and bright girl, of a tractable and sunny disposition, and loved by her playmates and friends. As the youngest of the family circle she became the pet of the household, and as her young life waned their hearts were filled with sadness and sorrow, for they knew they would never look again in this life on the face of the loved one. Peacefully and sweetly she went to her heavenly home. The angel band must have welcomed her with rejoicing.

- vi. LAURA BRAINERD, b. June 20, 1834, in East Haddam, Conn.; m. (by Rev. S. M. Robbins) Aug. 1, 1860, Henry Martyn Bridgman, b. Jan. 8, 1830, in West Hampton, Mass., son of Spencer and Dotha (Burt) Bridgman of the same place. He graduated at Amherst College and at Theological Seminary. They sailed for Natal, Africa, from Boston (bark Gemsbok) Sept. 1, 1860, as missionaries of the A. B. C. F. M. to the Zulu nation in South Africa. After a voyage of 72 days they reached Port Elizabeth, where they remained eight days waiting for a coast steamer, and arrived at Durban. Port Natal, Nov. 24th. Rains and floods kept them there three weeks, after which time they went by ox-wagon a day's journey to Amanzimtoti (now Adams Mission Station). After a few days another wagon journey, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Ireland, took them on fifteen miles further to Imfume, where they remained three months with Mr. and Mrs. Ireland, devoting themselves to the study of the Zulu language.

Mrs. Ireland's death the next year led to their being appointed to this station, where they remained till Oct., 1866, when Mr. Bridgman's broken-down condition required a change, and after six months at Cape Town they returned to America. After spending a year in St. Paul, Minn. (with the two oldest of their children, Burt and Amy), they left again for Natal in Nov., 1868. They went by steamer from New York to London, then on from there by sailing vessel (Verulan) to Durban, where they arrived early in April after a sea voyage of four months. They went to their old home at Imfume, awaiting mission appointment. In August by mission appointment they went on to Umzumbe, where they lived and labored 27 years, till Mr. Bridgman changed the service of earth for the rest of heaven. It was a wonderful and gracious Providence that kept them there till the work was so firmly established on a self-supporting basis that a resident missionary was no longer needed. A capable native pastor had been ordained and placed over the church, which was pledged to his support. The Umzumbe Home for Girls was also fully organized, and prepared to go on in its good work with an able corps of teachers. Mr. Henry M. Bridgman d. Aug. 20, 1896, æt. 66 yrs., in South Africa.

The temperance work, actively begun in 1879, had done much in clearing and strengthening the church, at last resulting in a reform in all the churches. The out-station work was also stimulated and enlarged, and has been going forward with steady and increasing power up to the present time. Mrs. Bridgman was president of the Natal W. C. T. U. and actively engaged in the work, having been appointed to that position by Mrs. Leavett when on her round-the-world trip. She gave up the presidency on account of Mr. Bridgman's failing health and the great distance from the work, it being a journey of four days by oxen to the nearest local union. After her husband's death she taught in the boys' school for two years, since which time she has been engaged in translating for publication, and in filling gaps, in teaching and other work, visiting with the people, etc., etc. The translated work was printed in Boston, Mass., 1904. Since its completion she has returned to South Africa where she is (1906).

While at Imfume and Umzumbe they were much interested in Sunday-school and in the woman's meeting, and among the people who lived near or came within their reach. Their children were:

- i. Burt Nichols, b. Dec. 31, 1863, in Imfume, Natal, South Africa; came to the United States of America for education in May and June, 1878; prepared for college in St. Johnsbury, Vt.; graduated from Amherst in 1884, and, after post-graduate course of one year, began the study of medicine; graduated from New York University in 1889, taking highest honors in a class of 180 students. (?), June 21, 1876, Delora Higgins, b. Sept. 23, 1852, at Pedro, Genessee Co., N. Y., dau. of Samuel and Betsey (Cornwell) Higgins. When a young man he went to Michigan and there learned the miller's trade. He afterwards returned to Gainesville, N. Y., and engaged in farming. He then had an interest in the Gainesville Mills, grist and sawmill, the firm being known as Hickey & Brainerd. By his honest and upright dealing he gained the confidence and esteem of all with whom he had intercourse. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was a Christian among the few who lived up to what he professed and believed right. He was a member of the A. O. U. W. and of the E. A. U., and of the Davis Division, S. of P. His loss will be sadly felt in each of these organizations, in all of which he held prominent and important offices as long as health permitted. He served as supervisor and held other town offices. He was superintendent of the Sabbath School. He was ever ready for the upbuilding of every religious, temperance, and moral work. His mission on earth was to do good, and he was never known to speak ill of any person. He was an affectionate and kind husband and father, and a person of whom no man spoke ill, and though he was called after having traveled life's pathway over, and while the "shadows still were falling toward the west," his mission on earth was well done and we trust our loss is his eternal gain. While on his way to Colorado for the benefit of his health, he stopped in Quincy, Ill., where he d. April 10, 1888. His remains were brought back to Gainesville for interment. 173. FRANKLIN AUGUSTUS⁷ BRAINERD (Luke⁶, Elisha⁵, Stephen⁴, Stephen³, Daniel², Daniel¹) of Gainesville, Wyoming Co., N. Y.; m., March 4, 1870, Grace Bryant, b. Feb. 11, 1852, in Gainesville, N. Y., dau. of John and Mary (Parker) Bryant. He left his home when a boy and sought his fortune in the west, settling near Silver City, Owyhee Co., Idaho Ter. He returned to New York in 1870.

The following is from the Silver City paper: "When about 21 yrs. of age, he came across the plains to California as a teamster with the expedition of General Hancock. Arriving in California, he resided awhile in Marysville, he then took the Idaho gold fever and in 1862, or '63, came to Lewiston, where he engaged in placer mining until the gold fields of the Owyhee country were discovered, when he left that place and arrived in Silver City in 1863, with R. H. Tregaskis, stopping at Boonville, where he was engaged as a clerk for a short time. He subsequently came to this city, where, in 1864, he opened a livery stable, which he conducted about one year, when he sold and took up a ranch in Pleasant Valley in company with a man named Killingsworth, and became a farmer. The Indians being on the war path at that time prevented their doing much farming and in the course of a couple of years, Killingsworth sold out to Mr. S. N. Smith, who, in company with Mr. Brainerd, did a good business. Mr. Smith subsequently sold his interest in the ranch to him."

He was a man of more than average intelligence, honest and industrious. He made many friends, who were always cordially welcomed to his home. His ranch contained a good house, barn, and corrals, well stocked with several hundred horses and cattle.

He was buried in the Masonic Cemetery at Hot Springs, Ark., he having been a Mason in good standing at the time of his death.

His wife so mourned his death, and overcome with the care and responsibility of the large ranch, in a fit of despondency and grief, she took her life. She was universally beloved by all her friends. The Masonic fraternity, of which her husband was a member, took charge of the remains and laid them by the side of her husband.

Lines on the death of Francis R. Lyman, Acting Assistant Surgeon, U. S. A., formerly of Sherburne, N. Y., who died, while in discharge of his duties, at Harwood Hospital, Washington, D. C., Nov. 1862.

Gone from thy childhood's home,
The hills and vales around thy place of birth
So loved for home has charm o'er all the earth,
The friends who mingled with thy happy youth,
But more than all, those hearts of changeless truth
Thy parents, oh! the thought is one of pain
That thou may'st never come to them again,
Beneath this earthly dome.

* The name given to the town clerk was Adna Carrier. The present name indicates a change of name by the parents, who gave the record.

Gone to thy quiet rest —
But not like thousands of our brothers brave,
Cut down by murderous blades to unknown graves,
Their bodies left to lie 'neath Southern skies,
No kind friend near to catch their parting sighs,
To smooth the locks a mother's hand hath stroked,
And soothe with tender words the heart nigh broke,
At thoughts of home so blest.

But while he sought to bind
The wounds just made by war's strong hand so red
And give the healing balm to those who bled,
Disease had marked him for its victim there
And paled the cheeks and brow so young and fair;
Thus ends the earth life, all his hopes are o'er
But Heaven has welcomed him to that bright shore,
And God is always kind.

Gone from thy cherished one
Whose tears are falling for the cruel doom,
That summoned him thus early to the tomb,
For he had chosen her to cheer his way,
Along the varied scenes of Life's young day.
Now God be with her — heal the breaking heart —
And point her to the home where friends ne'er part
When earthly life is done.

Ah yes, Frank's living still,
Living in hearts that knew his virtues well,
Living in memories that ever dwell
To bless us, though our dear ones leave our arms,
And earth seems dark and full of grief's alarms;
Faith points us to the World that never fails,
To mansions where no parting word assails
The heart with grief to fill.

Mary A. (Brainerd) Pierson.

225. MARY LYDIA⁷ BRAINARD (Leverett⁶, Amaziah⁵, William⁴, Stephen³, Daniel², Daniel¹) of Hartford, Hartford Co., Conn.; m., June 5, 1894, Charles Cheney, b. June 7, 1866, in Hartford, Conn., son of Frank Woodbridge and Mary (Bushnell) Cheney of Manchester, Conn., and grandson of the late Rev. Dr. Bushnell of Hartford, Conn. He is a silk manufacturer, living at South Manchester, Conn. Mrs. Mary Lydia (Brainard) Cheney d. Jan. 11, 1900, ae. 32 yrs., 1 mo., 27 ds. Her gentle life has passed away ere the shadows of the sunset of life had been permitted to gather around her, and has overwhelmed those nearest and dearest to her with inexpressible sorrow and grief. Amiable and lovable in disposition, courteous to all, enthusiastic and earnest in fulfilling her duties and obligations, a favorite among her young friends, she was called in early womanhood to yield up her life and exchange the attractions of her earthly home for the blessedness of her heavenly home.

The following article by Rev. Dr. E. P. Parker of this city appeared in The Hartford Courant:

To the Editor of The Courant:

You ask me for a few words concerning the departure of Mrs. Mary (Brainard) Cheney; I cannot say what should be said, or what I would say, but it would be ungracious, perhaps, to deny your request.

"How is the strong staff broken," we said among ourselves but a few days since; and now we must add, "and the beautiful rod!"

Of Ward Cheney* and of Mrs. Charles Cheney we may say in the language of the ancient lamentation, "They were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided."

* Ward Cheney was her brother-in-law, a brother of Charles Cheney. He died in the Philippines about the same time that Mrs. M. L. Cheney died, he having gone out there as a soldier in the United States Army.

He was gentle, faithful, good, and wore the flower of chivalrous manhood.

She was "gentle, faithful, good, and wore the rose of womanhood." They have both been taken hence in the flower of life, and upon their past "hath fallen a light which tempts us to adore."

I am quoting freely, and I must quote further, using choicer words than I can coin to express these values.

If your readers would have before them a good description of Ward Cheney, let them find out and read Wordsworth's noble poem entitled "Character of the Happy Warrior," beginning:

"Who is the happy warrior? Who is he?

That every man in arms would wish to be?"

It is too long to be quoted here, but in it, as in a mirror, are reflected the characteristics of that dear soul.

In the twelfth book of Wordsworth's "Prelude" are lines which I may quote, which seem to me to well describe the beautiful and lovely woman who has so closely followed her brother-in-law into the silent Land:

"Her eye was not the mistress of her heart,
Far less did rules prescribed by passive taste,
Of barren intermeddling subtleties,
Perplex her mind; but, wise as women are
When genial circumstance hath favored them.
She welcomed what was given, and craved no more.
Whate'er the scene presented to her view,
That was the best, to that she was attuned
By her benign simplicity of life.
Birds in the bower, and lambs in the green field,
Could they have known her, would have loved: . . .
Her very presence such a sweetness breathed,
That flowers, and trees, and even the silent hills,
And everything she looked on, should have had
An intimation how she bore herself
Towards them and to all creatures. God delights
In such a being: for her common thoughts
Are piety, her life is gratitude."

These few words — so much better than any I could frame — I offer, in love of her who has gone to make the distant Heaven nearer and more homelike to us here, and in gratitude to God who feeds our hearts for his own service, and shows us, in our sorrows, some "sublime attractions of the grave."

One single thought more I venture to express. In the deep shadow that has fallen around us, and in the great mystery of the dispensation in which we grope, it becomes us, if only loyal to the memory of these two dear souls, to consider their departure from us in the light of that Christian faith and hope in which they both lived and died, and which crowned the loveliness of their lives.

Bazael Brainard, 2d.

Col. Chapman's Regiment:

In Aug., 1778, a body of militia under Brig.-Gen. John Tyler served under Gen. Sullivan, and engaged in the attempt to dislodge the British at Newport. It was present at the battle of Rhode Island, Aug. 29, 1778. Capt. Holmes' Company.

Amaziah Brainard, pri.; en. Aug. 3, died Aug. 29; killed.

Fourth Battalion, Wadsworth Brigade, Col. Selden, 1778:

Battalion raised in June, 1776, to reinforce Washington in New York. Served in New York and on Long Island. Caught in the retreat and panic of Sept. 15, when the city was abandoned, and suffered some loss. Present with the army until Dec. 25, 1776, when term of regiment expired. Rolls incomplete. First Company.

Bezaleel Brainard, 1st Lieut., East Haddam.

Bezaleel Brainard, pri.

Colonel Wells' Regiment:

Two state regiments, composed of detachments of militia were raised in the spring of 1780, for service along the western coast. Col. Welles commanded one and Col. Beebe the other. On Dec. 9th, Col. Wells at Horseneck was attacked by the enemy and taken prisoner, together with one capt., two lieuts., two ens., and twenty or more privates. Rolls not on file.

Ens. William Brainard.

Fourth Regiment "Connecticut Line":

Formation of 1781-1783. Fourth Regiment in the second formation of the "Line," serving from Jan. 1, 1781, to Jan. 1, 1783, composed of the enlisted men of the Sixth Regiment of the previous formation. Its record for the two years appears in the text preceding, under heading D. Regiment consolidated in December, 1782, for third formation, Jan. to June, 1783. The following rolls of non-commissioned officers and privates represent the state of the command on Jan. 1, 1782, as pay acct's. Comptroller's office, Hartford, Conn. The record of commissioned officers is brought down to Jan. 1, 1783.

Jeremiah G. Brainard, East Haddam, Ensign, Appt. from civil life, July 26, 1780. Ensign in Seventh Regiment, first formation of the "Line." Cont. in the Fourth Regiment, 1781-83. Resigned March-April, 1781. He is said to have been employed in the War Office in Philadelphia.

In a list of Revolutionary names furnished me by the late Henry Martyn Selden of Haddam Neck, Conn., of that place and vicinity the following name is found.

Bezaliel Brainerd, East Haddam.
